One Second of History Alas, Poor Bears Not How Big, But WHAT Big Texas, Big Wells

By Arthur Brisbane

THE EARTH turns around once, that's another second in history, and the newspaper, Schopenhauer's, "second hand of history," reports as follows:

"Thirty insurance companies will insure people in the air, flown with passengers. The [illegible] there will be no additional risk in flying, which will be safer than railroad travel."

Virgil Jordan, chief economist of the National Industrial Conference Board, tells the Railway Business Association:

"A great industrial boom is coming that will make 1925 and 1926 look like a depression.

"Business expansion in 1925, and later, will strain our transportation facilities and credit resources to the limit, and put the powers of the Federal Reserve system to a real test."

The average citizen will say:

"Amen, let the expansion expand."

Our descendants are more interested in radium than we, for this earth's predicted life of several hundred millions of years depends on the sun's radio activity. No radium, no sun heat or light, a few millions years hence.

HOUSES COLLAPSE AND MANY HURT AS TORNADO STRIKES WASHINGTON

Washington, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—A number of persons were injured and many houses and buildings blown down or unroofed in the southwest and northeast sections of Washington during a storm which struck suddenly early this afternoon.

Reports showed that at least seven men and women and children had been taken to hospitals.

A school building at 18th street and Benning Road, Northeast, was reported destroyed and houses all over the eastern section of the city were damaged. Great damage was also reported in outlying sections east of the city.

The storm struck with sudden intensity after a drizzling rain.

Persons on downtown Washington streets saw a gathering of the clouds, in the familiar funnel-shape, just as President Coolidge was leaving the White House for the Union Station to board a train for Philadelphia.

A roof on the Norwod apartment house, on East Capitol street, was torn off. Alexandria, Va., just across the Potomac River, also was struck by the storm. The storm was accompanied by an unusually able display of lightning.

The winds, which also did considerable damage in Hattiesville, were not noticeable in the business section. President Coolidge is Marie Prevost, film star, who is suing Kenneth Harlan, gave a 3 a. m. "bathing party" in her home, but she didn't know any of the guests.

MARIE PREVOST

Los Angeles, Nov 17 (I.N.S.)—How Kenneth Harlan, film star, played host at a bathing suit party at 4 o'clock one morning in his Hollywood home was told in a divorce court here today by his estranged wife, Marie Provost, who is seeking a decree.

The actress testified she was awakened by hilarity in the living room, and coming down stairs was surprised to find her husband's guests "sitting around in their bathing suits."

"Were they his fiends?" Miss Provost was asked.

"I suppose so; I didn't know them," she replied.

And on the same day, last May, she left.

Today's Mexican Disclosures

By John Page

Washington Herald Bureau, 1322 New York Ave.

Washington, Nov. 17.—The secret conspiracy existing between the governments of Russia and Mexico to convert the Mexican and Central American people to Communism and set up a Bolshevist stronghold next door to the United States, is exposed by the Boston American and associated Hearst papers today.

The Hearst papers are fortunate in having conclusive proof of the existence of this conspiracy in the form of official documents bearing the signature of P. Elias Calles, President of Mexico.

These documents include an order issued by the Mexican Executive on his Treasury Department directing the pay-

Please Turn to Page 7, Column 1.

DIRECT connection between the Bolshevist governments of Russia and Mexico is established for the first time today in the fourth article of the series now being published in the American, revealing secret anti-American activities of the Mexican government.

TODAY'S article, based on original documents taken from the most carefully guarded files of the Mexican executive and published textually and in facsimile, show:

THAT on Armistice Day, November 11, 1926, President Calles paid $25,000 to the Russian legation in Mexico City to defray expenses for communist propaganda to be conducted under direction of the legation.

THAT Calles ordered no receipt should be required for the delivery of this money and no entry of it be made on the government's books.

THAT the Mexican government teaches communism in their public schools.

THAT on December 15, 1926, Calles ordered $5,000 be given secretly to Pablo Palovichi, a communist propaganda expert connected with the Russian legation, for the printing of propaganda-filled text books for Mexican children.

THAT on January 5, 1926, Calles ordered paid to this same Palovichi $25,000 to conduct a propaganda campaign among the Indians of Guatemala.

THESE disclosures will be continued in tomorrow's American.

MOTHER OF SLAIN GIRL CALLS BUCKLEY 'LIAR'

Beside what may be the deathbed of the man charged with murdering her daughter, a mother stood today, fighting back the tears, and called him "liar" for his declaration that Grace Mills of Waltham, his sweetheart, shot herself.

On the bed in Waltham Hospital lay Joseph Foster Buckley, twenty-three, of Weston, clinging to life but hoping for death—meeting eye to eye the searching gaze of Mrs. Marie E. Barry, the bereaved mother who sought to clear Grace of a suicide stigma.

Over by the window, his back turned to the scene and his fingers drumming unconsciously on the pane, stood a lieutenant of police in whose pocket was concealed a murder warrant of which Buckley has not yet been told.

MILLION FOR FLOOD AID; WARN OF NEW DISASTER

Burlington, Vt., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—After rain had fallen here for several hours the local U. S. weather bureau received a message from the river and flood division at Washington this afternoon giving warning of a storm that is expected to continue here for 24 hours. The message asked the local officials to notify all the towns and cities in Northern Vermont. The message added that high water was practically certain to follow.

Springfield, Nov. 17.—A relief fund of $1,000,000 for Vermont may be underwritten by the New England Council which, opening its third annual New England conference today at the municipal auditorium, will devote tomorrow to a discussion of flood relief, rehabilitatin and reconstruction.

Any action regarding a relief fund is contingent on recommendations expected tomorrow from Herbert Hoover and Fred A. Ireland, secretary finance commissioner for Vermont.

Either the council or the New England Bankers' Association must be the agency in raising such a fund, John S. Lawrence of Boston, council president, said unofficially prior to an address in which he declared the disaster hit united New England as never before.

TURNS DOWN $1,000 BID FOR BIG GAME TICKET

The sum of $1,000 was offered today by one ticket to the Harvard-Yale football classic at the Stadium Saturday. The offer was refused.

The story behind the offer was revealed by Bill Bingham, director of Harvard athletics, today. He said:

A big moving picture company is producing a football film built around Yale. They want pictures of the Yale team in action at the Harvard game and have offered $1,000 for a photographer's ticket for the sidelines. Yale has made known to us its desire not to appear in the film and we're doing our best to see that the film company's camera man doesn't get inside the Stadium."

ment of money to the Russian Soviet Legation in Mexico City for the specific purpose of conducting Communist propaganda, and another order for money with which to print school books filled with propaganda, for distribution in Mexican "Communist schools for the Young."

This is the sort of proof demanded by Senators and others during the Mexican-American controversy over Nicaragua last Winter, but which the State Department could not supply, though it knew very well what was going on in Mexico.

FOR SACASA

This campaign of pro-Bolshevist propaganda was undertaken by President Calles, with the close co-operation of the Russian Government, in order to win the support of his own people and of Central Americans generally for the Liberal revolutionary movement in Nicaragua, headed by Dr. Juan Bautista Sacasa, a Calles tool. The object of this movement, explained in the preceding articles of this series, was the overthrow of the Conservative Nicaraguan Government, which was friendly to the United States and favored early American construction of the proposed transcontinental canal.

While Armistice Day was being celebrated by millions of Americans on November 11, 1926, President Calles was ordering his Treasury Department to pay the sum of fifty thousand pesos ($25,000 in American money) over to Pablo Palovichi "for Communist propaganda expenses directed by Mr. A. B., Secretary of the Russian Legation in Mexico."

TEXT OF ORDER

The original order is in the possession of the Hearst papers and is reproduced in fac-simile elsewhere in the Boston Evening American, with its translation. The English text follows:

To the Citizen Secretary of the Treasury and Public Credit.

You will please direct the Citizen Treasurer General of the Nation to order the issuance of a pay-warrant in favor of Pablo Palovichi, for the sum of fifty thousand pesos, national gold ($25,000 U. S. gold), for Communist propaganda expenses directed by Mr. A. B., Secretary of the Russian Legation in Mexico.

Order that this sum be paid in gold by the Bank of Mexico, without the usual signed receipts, and that no entry of this payment be made on the books of the Controller's Department.

P. ELIAS CALLES
SG/PEC/RL (Hand-written)

The reproduction of this original document must command the attention of the people of many nations. Americans are most vitally concerned, for it is proof of the efforts of the Chief Executive of the next-door neighbor of the United States, to convert his own people to the Russian brand of Communism, with the direct co-operation of the Russian Soviet Legation.

President Calles, it will be noted, ordered that even more than the usual precautions to maintain the secrecy of this payment be observed, going so far as to direct that no entry of it should be made on the books of the Controller General.

American officials in Mexico City frequently have wondered why the Russian Legation found it necessary to maintain a larger staff in the Mexican capital than has been maintained by the United States or any other nation of the world. They have suspected that the large staff, composed of regularly listed attaches and unlisted employees of various categories, was engaged in the propagation of Communist Doctrine, not only in Mexico but in Central America, Venezuela, Colombia, Cuba, Porto Rico and the United States, but proof has been lacking. The first tangible evidence of such activities, which the United States cannot regard without disquietude, is that published in the Boston Evening American today.

SKILLFULLY WORKED

The Russian Legation in Mexico City conducts its Communistic propaganda campaign skilfully, invading every avenue available.

Following are some of the methods used:

Free love is advocated.

Religion is attacked.

Strikes are fomented.

Russian agitators are taught Spanish, to enable them to address Mexican labor gatherings.

Mexicans of radical tendencies are instructed in oratory and Communist doctrine.

Weekly and monthly pamphlets of ultra-radical type are subsidized.

Social gatherings are held almost nightly at which the hand-picked guests, with champagne-heated imaginations, never fail to pluck a few feathers from the American Eagle's tail.

A night restaurant is maintained, where revelers make easy conquests of attractive women who rob them, not of money, but of secret and sometimes valuable information. Men not suspected of knowing anything are not so fortunate with the female habitues of this place.

President Calles and his Secretary of Education, Jose Manuel Puig Casaurane, are paying much attention to the teaching of Mexico's school-children, taking care that they are taught the tenets of Bolshevism while their minds are yet in a plastic condition.

LENIN LAUDED

While American school-children are reading of Washington and Lincoln, those of Mexico are told of the beautiful lives and examples of Lenin and "Red Rosa" Luxembourg. A kindergarten and grammar-school reader containing idealized accounts of the careers of these and a dozen other ultra-radical men and women has the official approval of the Mexican Department of Education and is published with Mexican Government funds.

Many Mexican institutions of learning are hot-beds of Communism and their number is increasing, as teachers of conservative tendencies are being forced from their positions by the simple expedient of withholding their salaries until they are starved out.

The Mexican Students Communist Association has the benevolent approval of the government and extended a warm welcome to Madam Kollontay, the Russian Ambassadress, upon her arrival in Mexico.

Direct proof that the Mexican Government is teaching Communism to its school-children is contained in a document in the possession of the Hearst papers. It is an order issued by President Calles on his Treasury Department for five thousand dollars to be paid to Pablo Palovichi for "expenses in the printing of books of Socialist Propaganda for the Communist Schools for the Young," of Mexico City.

The order is published in fac-simile elsewhere in these columns. The English text follows:

Dr. Gustave Petrovichi, one of the propagandists imported from Soviet Russia by the Mexican Government, did such effective work among the adolescents and adults of Mexico during 1926 that he was sent into the neighboring republic of Guatemala by Calles on a similar errand early this year. Reports from Guatemala City are that Petrovichi made many converts to Communism among the Indians in the Peten district.

$25,000 FOR TRIP

The Mexican Executive's order on the Treasury Department for funds to finance Petrovichi's propaganda trip was unusually liberal, even for Calles. Twenty-five thousand dollars was the sum provided. The original order is reproduced photographically elsewhere in these columns; the English text follows:

To the Secretary of the Treasury and Public Credit.

You will please direct the Citizen Treasurer General of the Nation to issue a pay-warrant to Pablo Palovichi for the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars in order that he may deliver it to Dr. Gustave Petrovichi for propaganda expenses among the Indians of the Zone of Peten in Guatemala.

MEXICO EXPOSE IS DENIED

The Boston Evening American herewith publishes a dispatch giving the expected denials of the facts, supported by authentic and official documents, which are being brought out from day to day by this newspaper.

Mexico City, Nov. 17.—Unnamed interests are attempting through publication in these documents in some United States newspapers, to foment dueling, not only between Mexico and the United States, but between all of the Latin-American countries and the North American republic, in opinion of Dr. Pedro J. Zepeda, representative in Mexico of the Paraguan Liberal party.

Dr. Zepeda declared categorically that he for any other of the Nicaraguan Liberals, headed by Juan B. Sacasa, ever received any money, directly or indirectly, from President Calles or his Government as alleged by the Hearst newspapers. He declared that any documents intended to prove this were pure fabrications.

HOOVER OUTLINES NEEDS OF VERMONT FLOOD AREA

BANK CREDITS FOR INDUSTRY ESSENTIAL

Montpelier, Vt., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Secretary Herbert Hoover of the Department of Commerce, before leaving for Boston today, told Governor John E. Weeks that the National Red Cross should assume full responsibility for the rehabilitation of individual sufferers from the Vermont flood.

Credits for industrial and commercial establishment, he said, should be arranged by either the New England Bankers' Association or the New England Council, and the Federal Highway Bureau should be asked to estimate the cost of restoring Federal aid roads.

DISCUSS STATE'S NEEDS.

Mr. Hoover, who came to Vermont at the request of President Coolidge to give State officials the benefit of his advice in formulating flood relief and rehabilitation measures, made these suggestions in a letter which he handed to Governor Weeks this morning.

They were discussed at an after breakfast conference in which the secretary and the governor were joined by Atty. Gen. John G. Sargent, whose home is in Ludlow, and James L. Feiser, vice-chairman of the National Red Cross.

In his letter Secretary Hoover said:

"The National Red Cross should at once announce its acceptance of

'BEST DRESSED' WIFE IS AFTER $100,000 ALIMONY

WANTS IT FOR HATS, GOWNS, COSMETICS!

New York, Nov. 17 (I.N.S.).—Mrs. Tillie Loeb Leopold, having blasted the bankroll of her quarry magnate husband out of $100,000 yearly in order to defend her title as the "best dressed American in Paris," she sees no reason why her alimony should not be sufficient to maintain the reputation.

That's the plea Mrs. Leopold was to reiterate today in Supreme Court in her alimony hearing. She seeks $1,200 a week and $25,000 counsel fees from Joseph Leopold, millionaire Maine stone and granite man.

In their separation suits each charges the other with excessive drinking. In setting out her alimony needs Mrs. Leopold itemized her expenditures as follows:

Dresses, $10,000; hats, $1,500, shoes, $2,000; furs, $5,000; cosmetics, $1,000.

The wealthy defendant now charges that she was never his wife—that her divorce from her previous husband Isaac Loeb, of Chicago, was invalid. He also deplored her "fever for gambling" and her bad temper. Leopold is 60 years old, his wife half his age.

In her petition she ignores the $100,000 trust fund that Leopold says he has established for her.

From their places within their gilt frames upon the walls of historic old Faneuil Hall, America's immortals, slightly bewildered no doubt, gazed down upon a strange scene today.

Alone upon the speaker's platform, his right hand lifted now and then in a gesture of emphasis, an elderly man stood and delivered an address which touched on many subjects but seldom digressed from the fervor of patriotism.

And before him, as he talked for more than an hour, sat an audience that numbered at no time more than five and was, nearing the end, composed of but a single person.

George Derby was making a speech—George H. Derby, of Arlington, more than four-score years of age and founder of a famous company in 1872.

FIVE AT ONE TIME.

Listening to George Derby's speech were a woman stenographer, hired by the speaker to take notes; Whitfield Tuck, an interesting and interested gentleman in knickers who refused to give his name; one newspaper photographer and one reporter.

Several days ago Mr. Derby obtained from the city a permit to make an address in Faneuil Hall. He paid $10 for the permit. The address, according to advance information, was to be on the subject: "To the honest workers and real producers of the world vs. the shirkers who produce no real necessity and still consume more, and are better housed and clothed than are the real producers of the world."

HUBBELS LIVING APART; COURT FIXING ALIMONY

An agreement that Mrs. Martha G. Hubbel of Wollaston is living apart from her husband, Dr. Edgar G. Hubbel, Bay State road dentist, for justifiable cause, has been reached out of court.

This announcement, made by Judge McCoole in Probate Court at Dedham today by Attorneys John P. Feeney and Francis J. Monahan, was followed by testimony by husband and wife over the question of alimony, which Judge McCoole will settle.

The separate support action was only one of a series of court actions in the tangled marital affairs of the Hubbels, these including a $50,000 suit for alienation of affections filed by Mrs. Hubbel last April against Evelyn C. Vinal of Quincy.

"I would have welcomed him back if he had stopped doing what he was doing," said Mrs. Hubbel, in her testimony, but further mention of the causes underlying their troubles was excluded.

Dr. Hubbel, citing his belongings declared his wife had "stolen" a $1,500 boat which he owned but added that he still had a yacht valued at $7,400. His income, he said, amounted to $13,000 to $14,000 annually, but he was living in a house owned by his wife. He has been paying her $20 weekly pending a permanent adjustment, he said.

Mrs. Hubbel, who, before her marriage, was Dr. Hubbel's secretary, asserted that he left their Wollaston home a year ago and said she has lost 35 pounds as a result of her troubles.

STRANGE SCENE STAGED IN "CRADLE OF LIBERTY"

George H. Derby reads economic and patriotic paper in Faneuil Hall, while one by one his hearers dwindle away. A curious marketman drops in, but withdraws at the end of two minutes. Finally, the speaker is left alone, but continues to read as George Washington and his fellow immortals gaze down from the historic walls.

Seize Witness in Appeal ~ For 'Jerry the Pole'

Ormsby L. Court in custody of sheriff's deputy, charged with contempt in quoting in an affidavit an allegel statement by Peter J. Kay that the latter's tenant, Algernon M. Dunbar, a juror in the trial of Jerry Gedzium (Jerry the Pole), said he had made up his mind to find Gedzium guilty of murder before he heard the evidence. Court was listed as an employe of Gedzium's attorney in the trial.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Kay leaving court after hearing, when "Jerry the Pole" is denied new trial in death case. Kay and Juror Dunbar on the witness stand declared Ormsby L. Court's affidavit false. Kay declared Court threatened to "get the police" to make him sign an affidavit to the same effect as that upon which one of the motions for a new trial for Jerry Gedzium was based.

MOTHER OF SLAIN GIRL CRIES 'LIAR' AT BUCKLEY'S STORY

Outside in the corridor paced nervously Miss Dorothy Mills, older sister of Grace, unwilling to be present during the brief drama being enacted back of the closed door.

And nurses and internes, sensing the tense atmosphere in the hospital wing, quickened their light steps as they passed to and from their patients.

It was a dramatic moment when Mrs. Barry, struggling to hold in her pent emotions, was led to the bedside by Lieutenant Peter J. Tracy of the Waltham police.

She had asked for the interview and Buckley had agreed to talk with her.

"Foster," she said, and there was a tremor, both of grief and bitterness in her voice. "I have come here to see if you would not tell us the truth. Did Grace—shoot herself, as you said?"

CALLS BUCKLEY "LIAR."

By comparison, the youth's voice was strong, although the blood of hemorrhage was seeping into his lungs.

"She did," he answered.

"I don't believe it," cried Mrs. Barry. "She would not do that to herself. I know she did not have the strength even to leave home and walk away up there where you said she met you, at the reservoir near the waterfall. She could not walk that far, and you know it. You took her from the house!"

"I did not; she walked up there," Buckley declared.

"Grace was so sick that she could not walk across a room without feeling it and she never could shoot herself."

"Well, she did, and she asked me to finish her and I fired the second shot." insisted Buckley.

"I don't believe it," cried the mother. "It's a lie. It's not true."

Buckley raised himself weakly and pointed to the dresser, on which lay a bracelet, a pathetic bauble of ivory and rhinestones.

"There's the bracelet she gave me," he said, "as a pledge that she would meet me."

"That's a lie," cried Mrs. Barry. "You lie. She did not give you that bracelet. She had both her bracelets on when we put her to bed that night.

"WOULDN'T TELL TRUTH"

The lieutenant turned away from the window in realization that the interview should end for the good of all concerned. He took Mrs. Barry gently by the arm and led her from the room, joining Dorothy in the corridor.

"He wouldn't tell the truth," the mother sobbed.

"He's not a man," said Dorothy soothingly. "If he were a man he would not even have fired the second shot, as he says he did."

They were driven back to Waltham police headquarters in the family car by Dorothy, who had driven them to the hospital. On the return trip, according to Lieutenant Tracy, Dorothy told him that Buckley had threatened her on several occasions for her interference with his courtship of Grace.

"I'll get you later," Buckley said, according to the sister. "He used to write love letters that amused poor Grace. She didn't think half as much of him as he did of her. She didn't want to marry him. They were not engaged.

BURNED LOVE LETTERS.

"Marriage was out of the question for Grace and she knew it. That was why my mother and all of us opposed his attentions to Grace. And as soon as Grace would get his letters, she would read them to us and would then burn them. They amused her as they did all of us."

George L. Ellsworth, living in Wayland, but with his law offices at No. 53 State street, was retained today as counsel for Buckley, but whether Buckley or his sister and brother retained the lawyer was not disclosed.

The funeral of Miss Mills will be held Saturday, it was announced today by the family. The body will be on view to friends and relatives tonight at the Mills home, No. 51 Morton street.

Four former classmates at Waltham High School will be pallbearers. They are Frank Rogers, Nigel and Donald Pattershall and Joseph Hill.

Burial will be in a West Roxbury cemetery.

The accused slayer placed the scene of Grace Mills' tragedy today at an old mill in Sudbury, but otherwise he stuck substantially to his original story of the death-night's events and locations.

Police believe the couple quarreled over Buckley's intended departure for Nova Scotia and that the youth.

Aids Buckley

HEADS DEFENSE

Attorney George L. Ellsworth, employed today to protect interests of Joseph F. Buckley, youth accused of slaying girl in Waltham love drama.

regarded as "eccentric" killed the girl and then attempted suicide.

HINT "ALIBI" PLANNED.

Lieutenant Tracy said today that police believe Buckley's motive for his alleged killing of the girl was to make it impossible for any other man to have her as his wife, if Buckley could not have her.

From a story told by a woman rooming house proprietor in Spruce street, according to the officer, it is thought that Buckley intended using his chum, Herbert Smith, as an innocent supporter of an alibi.

Smith left his job Tuesday to accompany Buckley on a trip into the flood section of Vermont, where, according to a story Buckley had told his friends, they both intended to get jobs.

The rooming house proprietor said Buckley informed her their start was to be made early in the morning and police figure that Miss Mills' body was to be found long after their departure.

Piecing together their theory, the police have Buckley persuading the girl to slip away from her bed unobserved while he was supposed to be at the rooming house with Smith.

POLICE REVEAL THEORY.

No one would see them together, the girl would die, Buckley would slip back into the rooming house and a few hours later, he would tell his car for Vermont.

But the rooming house keeper said that although Buckley told her both he and Smith would return to the house after the movies, and that although she heard the car being put up in the garage, only one man entered the house.

It is the police theory that Buckley in the end forgot all his plans and decided to kill himself also.

REMUS BITTER WHEN DODGE IS NAMED

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Cincinnati, Nov. 17.—Mention of Franklin L. Dodge, Jr., at the trial today of George Remus, former bootleg king, for the murder of his wife, Imogene Remus, provoked a bitter legal battle.

Dodge is the man who, Remus alleged, won the affections of his wife and caused her to "double cross" him.

The clash came during examination of George Awrey, sixty-seven, former oil operator and prospective juryman. Questioned by Remus, Avery admitted his son was a judge at Ann Arbor, Mich., for many years.

DIDN'T KNOW DODGE.

"Do you know Franklin L. Dodge of Lansing, Mich.?" Remus asked.

"I do not," was the reply admitted over State objection.

Q.—Would the fact that I am an ex-bootlegger, ex-convict, and disbarred as a lawyer, affect your judgment as a juror? A.—I would be fair about those matters.

Q.—Would the fact that my life is in the balance prejudice you for or against me? A.—N.

TAFT OVERRULED.

Q.—Would the fact that Charles P. Taft, son of Chief Justcie Taft, is prosecuting this case, prejudice you against me? A.—No, sir.

Taft, incensed, objected to this questioning. Judge Shook ruled in Remus' favor.

Later Remus persisted in addressing the court on another point and Judge Shook warned him:

"You will have to abide by the rulings of this court if you want to continue as a lawyer in this case."

"Very well," said Remus politely.

INTIMIDATION OF CERO JURY BY POLICE CHARGED

Declaring that policemen intimidated members of the jury while questioning them at their homes, after they had been selected as prospective jurors by the registrars of voters, Attorney William R. Scharton, defense counsel, today asked that the entire jury in the trial of Gangi Cero for first degree murder be discharged.

This motion was denied by Judge Cox in Suffolk Superior Court, and Attorney Scharton took exception upon which, he said, he may go to the Supreme Court. The case was nearly ready for the jury late this afternoon.

Johnson, a coemployee, with his car, today pleaded guilty to driving an automobile so as to endanger the lives of the public. He was fined $200. At the time of the accident Mr. Martin and his bride were fleeing pursuing members of the wedding party.

SPEAKERS TELL BENEFITS OF RESEARCH

progress and has left the cheering and flag-waving to others."

This stated Dr. Lee Galloway of the Ronald Press of New York, was the clear impression he gleaned from reading the report of a survey made for the New England Council by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

"The research men came through the survey asking, 'Where are these ultra-conservative New Englanders we had heard about?' said Dr. Galloway.

"New conditions have caused New England business management to engage in a sort of official introspection. Management has been turning its thoughts to the making of a better product at a lower cost with a more effective and economical distribution.

"In the great majority of cases investigators were told that the volume of business was not adversely affected for long by changed buying habits and that it was now steadily going upward.

"One New England manufacturer increased the selling time of his salesmen 15 per cent. as a result of research. One publishing company found that 93 per cent. of the wealthy women of the country plan their own menus and buy their own food, rather than leaving this to servants.

"One manufacturer found that his average cost per sales dollar was eight cents, but he found, too, that this average was made up of costs running from $1.54 on one item to three cents on another. The report tells how research brought him this valuable information.

RESEARCH SUCCESSFUL.

"Research is thus bringing increased prosperity to many New England concerns by eliminating guess work and risk from undertakings."

The third conference of the New England Council opened officially today at the Auditorium, with an address of welcome by Mayor Fordis Parker.

A. Lincoln Filene, chairman of the council's committee on research, described the benefits of cooperative research, through trade associations and otherwise, predicting that such research will increase both the prosperity of individual concerns and that of industry as a whole, and added:

"Before the individual business can obtain the full benefits of its own competitive strength, all the members of the industry must learn to pull together."

Mr. Filene criticized the "short-sighted methods of concerns which, without knowledge of cost accounting and profit figuring, cut prices and sacrifice their own profits and disorganize the efforts of larger and better run businesses."

WHERE WE LEAD.

More than three times as many industries were established in New England last year than left the region, the 500 delegates to the conference were informed in a report of the committee on public relations and community organization, presented by Colonel Frank Knox, publisher of the Hearst newspapers in Boston, acting chairman of the committee.

New England is facing today just as great opportunities as she has enjoyed in the past, and New England's leaders in agriculture, commerce and industry are working together as never before to take advantage of these opportunities, President John S. Lawrence of the New England Council said.

"The New England Council has brought together important groups and interests in the fields of agriculture, power, banking and industry, which have embarked upon programs of joint action toward New England's development that augur much good for the future," he said.

He urged the "overhauling and modernizing" of laws, declaring it would stimulate New England management, capital and labor, because "to bleed industry by unfair legislation or unjust taxes is an great a crime against the community as for the management to bleed it for the temporary benefit of stockholders."

New England should co-operate in the development of recreational resources as builders of good will for every community and industry, said a report presented by P. F. O'Keefe of Boston for the committee on recreational resources.

PIMPLES AND BLACK-HEADS ALL OVER FACE

Was ashamed to be seen—simple remedy brought quick improvement

Munden, Va., Aug. 5:—"Awhile ago I began to be troubled with enlarged pores and blackheads. Then pimples developed, and even boils. My skin was very sore and in a terrible condition. It was so disfigured and unsightly I was ashamed of it. I tried about everything to be had for pimples, but with no good results. I had heard Resinol Ointment and Soap so highly recommended for troubles like mine, I decided to try them. After one treatment there was a decided improvement, and the pimples began to fade away. I advise everybody with skin trouble to try Resinol." (Signed) Miss Hazel Beasley.

THEFT SUSPECT IS CAUGHT BY FLYING TACKLE

Brought to earth by George Fairbanks of No. 423 Broadway, Somerville, with a flying tackle while running away from a robbery at No. 513A Medford street, Somerville, Anthony Smith, held by police to be Anthony Pecunis, released from State Prison last August, in Somerville Court today was held in $20,000 for the Grand Jury.

Smith, or Pecunis, was captured while the screams for aid of William Zidell, proprietor of a shoe store at the Medford street address, were still ringing through the neighborhood. Two youths who police say were his companions, escaped.

Zidell said a young man entered his store and asked for a pair of shoes. As he went to get them, two others appeared with guns in their hands, held him up, and while they tied him with handkerchiefs the first robbed him of $75. The shoe man said he was then thrown on the floor and covered by an overcoat.

The trio had barely left the store when Zidell freed himself, and, rushing to the door, shouted for help. Motorcycle Officer Henry W. Roche was driving by in his automobile, on the way home from his school, when he heard the cries and saw the three youths running up Medford street toward Partridge avenue. He drove up Broadway in the same direction but Fairbanks, who was on foot, reached the auto first. Making a flying tackle, Fairbanks brought Smith to the ground just as Officer Roche drove up in time to place him under arrest.

On arraignment today for robbery while armed, Smith pleaded not not guilty and waived examination. Lieutenant Danery of the Somerville police said he identified Smith from fingerprints as Pecunis, who was released from State Prison last August after serving a two and one-half to three-year sentence for robbery. He is twenty years old and lives in Cambridge.

TWO HURLED FROM WAGON BY HIT-AND-RUN DRIVER

A hit-and-run motorist crashed the rear end of a two-horse wood-loaded team in Sumner street in the Army Base today, injuring two men riding on the load. Both men were hurled to the pavement. Leo J. Pelham, forty-one, of South Boston, suffered contusions to his back, and Joseph Haywood, thirty-eight, of Cambridge, sustained a compound fracture of one leg. They were taken to the Haymarket Relief Station.

BURGLAR GETS $170 IN DORCHESTER SCHOOL

A break, netting thieves $170 in cash and $125 worth of tools, was discovered today when the Grover Cleveland grammar school, Charles street, Dorchester, was opened for the session. The money, collected from the children in payment for strips of "ping-pong" pictures, was taken from the safe after the combination was knocked off with the tools stolen in another part of the building.

FEAR M'INTOSH FORCED DOWN ON FLIGHT TO INDIA

London, Nov. 17 (A.P.)—Much anxiety was felt this afternoon for Captain R. H. McIntosh and Bert Hinkler, overdue on their flight to India. No word has been heard from them since their start Tuesday at 1:49 p. m. from Uphaven. It was estimated their fuel supply would be exhausted by 11:30 a. m. this morning, London time, and it is, therefore, considered certain they are down somewhere.

Captain A. J. Barnes, one of the backers of the flight, said he had become much concerned. The fear was expressed that they might have landed in some isolated spot in the Afghanistan wilds or in the Himalayan region, escape from which would be extremely difficult.

SADIE MUST GET EXTRA 'E' ERE SHE SAILS

The difference of a letter "e" to Uncle Sam's passport bureau gives Newton Centre the wedding of the Kelly-Kelley's tonight. Sadie of sandwich fame and George Henry, State street broker and Harvard graduate, it was revealed today.

The couple plan to sail at 1 a. m Saturday morning from New York.

First plans for a Friday wedding in New York were abandoned when the passport bureau ruled that Sadie must appear before them and show she was legally entitled to the extra "e" before credentials could be issued by their department for the trip overseas.

Government tape unwinds slowly allowing insufficient time in the scant few hours before closing time to get State Department approval in time for the sailing.

The wedding will take place tonight in the rectory of the Church of the Sacred Heart, Newton Centre. The ceremony is to be performed by Rev. Timothy A. Curtin, pastor.

When the government difficulties were encountered the couple secured a waiver of the five-day law when they appeared before Judge Bacon in Newton Court last Monday. They merely stated at the time that they wished to be married in plenty of time for the sailing.

Hottest Night in Fifty Years for November

All local records for November 17 in the history of the weather bureau were sent crashing into the discard today when the mercury on the official thermometer at the Federal Building reached a high mark of 73 at one o'clock.

The previous record for this date was 71, established on November 17, 1896, but today's maximum was not the highest for the month of November, which sets on a pedestal of 76.

Despite the continued heat wave, violating New England traditions, to say nothing of ethics of weather forecasting, the official prediction of much colder weather tonight was reiterated. The mercury dropped one degree at 2 p. m.

The temperature during the night

Lindy Best News Maker; Queen Marie Next

Chicago, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Mussolini is not the most important man in the world news, nor Ruth Elder the most important woman, Journalism students at Northwestern University have voted.

The distinction has been given to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Henry Ford among the men, and to Queen Marie among the women.

Ranking below Lindbergh and Ford were President Coolidge, Mussolini, the Prince of Wales, Mayor Thompson, Thomas Edison, Gene Tunney, Al Smith and Babe Ruth. Mrs. Coolidge, Ruth Elder, Helen Wills and Jane Addams received several votes to rank them just below the Rumanian queen as of major world news importance.

dropped no lower than 62 as suburban and city residents tossed aside Winter covers for greater sleeping comfort.

The morning rush hour found commuters straggling to work with the mercury at 64, and by 10 o'clock it was 68 and threatening to break the November 17 record of 71.

Storm warnings are posted on the seaboard, and southerly gales are expected along the Bay State coast tonight. Rain is predicted for tonight and Friday morning, and it will be "much colder" tomorrow, according to the weather man. Snow is falling at Cleveland and Louisville on the northern edge of a storm area heading northeastward.

SINCLAIR MAN FAILS TO CUT $25,000 BAIL

Washington, Nov. 17.—An attempt by attorneys for H. Mason Day vice president of the Sinclair Exploration Company, to have his send reduced from $25,000 to $10,000 failed today. Justice McCoy, in District Court, refused to grant the reduction, although he gave permission to Day's attorneys to argue the case next Monday.

Day is one of the associates of Harry F. Sinclair, millionaire oil magnate, who is charged with conspiracy to tamper with the jury in the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy case.

Bond of $10,000 was fixed for Sheldon Clark, another Sinclair oil official, when he was placed under similar charges last week after complaints had been made against Day and Sinclair.

Day's counsel asked for reduction of his bond on the ground that it was excessive. Assistant District Attorney Neil Burkinshaw said his information was that Day had no permanent residence in this country and that a $25,000 bond was necessary to insure his presence when wanted.

Council for Edward J. Kidwell, juror in the oil case accused of bribing of getting an automobile out of it, agreed today to ask a postponement of the hearing of his plea that contempt charges be entered against his accusers, Don K. Kline, a Washington Herald reporter, and J. Ray Akers, a street car conductor.

FURS

One Year to Pay

Thirty-Five Years of Square Dealing with the Public

Not one customer can point their finger at us and say that we ever deceived them in the way of honest values for honest dollars.

DOLAN & SON Actually Prove That Burnt Skins Are Used in Most Remarkable Looking Coats

Read the following letter and draw your own conclusions

Mr.——

New York City, N. Y.

Dear Sir:

We are returning as of even date two neutria coats sent us without permission for our approval as to quality and price. The price you quote is most attractive from a money making standpoint. The coats are wonderful to look at, the design is a hum-dinger, and the lining superb, and the fur also is wonderful in color and weight.

But?

we don't sell that class of coat. When we examined and tested the pelts, we found every skin so rotten from being burned that for us to offer this class of coats to our customers who expect absolute protection, and get it, would be suicide to our business.

We know perfectly well that these beautiful coats will not be sent to the junk-heap, and for this reason we sympathize with the poor unfortunate who may purchase same later on.

Please refrain from sending any more merchandise for our approval. We advertise protection. We talk protection, and we absolutely give protection, and for this reason we cannot operate with a firm such as yours.

Very truly yours,

CD/AG CHAS. P. DOLAN & SON.

We Can't Perform Miracles

It is impossible for us to sell you a $200 coat for $85, or a $300 coat for $125, or a $260 coat for $60, therefore you will never see such offerings advertised by this concern.

STORAGE

During our storage season we find hundreds of customers who have been sadly deceived in the purchase of a coat, and in many instances we find that after one season this class of coat is not worth the cost of repairing same.

HUDSON SEAL

When a Hudson Seal, which is dyed muskrat, is offered for sale, how is the public going to know whether the coat is made from good, honest, selected skins, or from flats, throwouts, Canadians, burnt skins, etc., etc., etc.? They all look alike to the buyer. Even the shrewdest can easily be deceived. Therefore, we know much better than you that protection is very much needed when no little amount of hard earned money is being spent for the purchase of a fur coat. We offer you full protection in quality and price, and our interest in your coat never ceases during its life.

PROTECTION YOU DON'T PAY FOR

We examine, compare, test, and insist on a certain quality skin being used in every coat we offer for your selection. For this reason Dolan & Son's never hesitate in offering $500 rewards, and our money-back guarantee to each customer who might favor us with a share of their patronage.

TERMS

Our terms are as easy as any offered in Boston or Massachusetts, and our merchandise and business dealings can always be relied upon.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY EVENTS

Miss Eugenia Frothingham to Dance With Society Troupe in Keene

WITH A VARIETY OF FETCHING COSTUMES packed up and some specially bewitching dance steps practised until perfect, Miss Eugenia Frothingham is away soon for Keene, N. H., to appear in a show as a talented member of that very talented Braggiotti-Denishawn troupe, for which Society has such a liking. Miss Berthe and Miss Gloria Braggiotti go also, as stars in the aggregation that is practically of stellar quality throughout. They and their coryphees do some beautiful ensembles, notably that Winter Scene that was so greatly applauded last Winter.

MISS FROTHINGHAM, NEXT TO THE YOUNGEST daughter of the Langdon Frothinghams, is one of the younger set setting her gifts and talents to definite use. Since she dances with the grace of a fairy and the verve of a Muscovite, it's quite natural that so is one of the Braggiotti fold. The stay in Keene will continue not longer than early Saturday morning, for, with the "Big Game" on tapis, everyone is dashing straight home to reach the Stadium in time for this annual joust of might and brawn.

WHATEVER THE OUTCOME OF THE CONTEST may be, the Crimson and the Blue are as one in fittingly celebrating the "night before." One affair arranged particularly for the resident students and those hailing from New Haven is the Intercollegiate Ball, a perfectly enormous gala occasion, taking its way in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Copley-Plaza. Prominent young collegians from both Cambridge and New Haven guide the destinies of the ball as ushers, six from each college, and all prominent in sports and clubs.

JOHN WATTS, JOHN P. CHASE, JOHN N. BARBEE, Albert H. O'Neill, Arthur L. May and William L. Magee will be the Crimson sextet. And for the Blue, Messrs. Irving H. Peck, Jr., S. William Carr, Richard F. Vaughan, Sabin Robbins, Horton Spitzer and George W. Haight are the chosen ones. From 8 of the evening of Friday to 3 of the morning of Saturday does the intercollegiate take its frolicsome way, to tunes piped by a famous orchestra brought up from Washington specially for the evening.

MRS. PHILIP L. SALTONSTALL, AUTHOR AND playwright, was hostess yesterday at luncheon for Dr. Sarah Ellen Palmer, lecturer and well-known surgeon, immediately after Dr. Palmer finished her illustrated talk at the Art Museum. Mrs. Saltonstall was an interested listener for this, the third and last of Dr. Palmer's Autumn series. Mrs. Saltonstall took a small group of luncheon guests out to her home in Dedham, that magnificent estate known as "Rockweld" and regarded by landscape gardeners, horticulturists and the like as a gem. As it truly is.

EUGENIA FROTHINGHAM

(Boston Evening American Photo)

DR. PALMER'S AUDIENCES, ALWAYS SOCIALLY IMPORTANT AND ARTISTICALLY DISTINGUISHED, yesterday was particularly so. Mrs. George S. Selfridge of Berkeley street was in the company, as also Mrs. Harry F. Curtis of Brookline and Mrs. Calvin Gates Page, known to the world of art as Marie Page, portrait painter. Mrs. Philip Young of Nahant and San Francisco, well remembered here as Miss Ella Bender, has been a subscriber for the Palmer lectures.

APROPOS OF THE ART MUSEUM, THE UNCEASING INTEREST MR. AND MRS. EDWARD JACKSON HOLMES have in that magnificent institution is freshly exemplified each passing day. Their latest contribution to art is a group of etchings, notably fine in themselves and notable as well as coming from the hand of a Boston favorite, Frank W. Benson. This group is set up in the prints department, and ever so many visitors are delighting in them. The courtesy and thoughtfulness of Mr. and Mrs. Holmes as regards the Museum is unending, and their latest loan is proving most popular.

VERY PRETTILY DONE AND DESERVEDLY FAVORITE OF THE Young Set was the first of the Tea Dance series at the Repertory Hall, last Saturday. As the opening affair of sixteen in succession, it lights the way most auspiciously. Repertory Hall is an attractive background. The music was excellent, and four matrons presided with the perfection that comes of experience. Mrs. Henry Lee Higginson, 2d, Mrs. Andrew Peters, Mrs. Charles Bullard and Mrs. Charles Frederick Weed were at the tea urns.

SATURDAY, WHEN THE HARVARD-YALE GAME HAS MADE football history once more and the fans come thronging back to town, many will find the floor and the music and the attractive scene of the Tea Dance exactly to their liking for the hours between four and seven. Lighted tapers on a long refectory table, the orchestra on the stage, and tea tables in a circle about the dancing floor make as attractive an ensemble for the dance as one could wish. Some very interesting groups are arranged to serve these Saturday afternoons.

HAVING TRANSFERRED HIMSELF AND HIS EXTENSIVE wardrobe from Newport to Virginia Hot Springs, Thomas Powers takes up the thread of entertainment just where he discontinued it in Newport. He gave a dinner the other evening for some intimates at The Homestead, a small and choice group bidden to an affair done with all the Powers finesse. The Powers social progression, from Newport, to Hot Springs, to Washington and Park avenue is a succession of similar functions, the host being a host par excellence.

the full responsibility toward all those who cannot otherwise provide for themselves, to furnish new home construction, cattle, horses, live-stock, farm implements, tools, food and clothing for the Winter.

"Also they should undertake such assistance to smaller merchants and artisans as will enable them to get back to self-support.

"My advices are that the railways with minor exceptions are both able and intend to carry through vigorous reconstruction of their lines.

PRAISES PEOPLE'S COURAGE.

"May I add my admiration for the way each neighborhood has grappled its difficulties, the self-reliance and courage which each has shown in this very great disaster. It is obvious that the cost of rehabilitation is beyond the means of the stricken districts. It is also obvious that assurances must be given at once that assistance will be forthcoming. In that light I have made these suggestions."

Mr. Hoover and his party left Montpelier soon after 10 o'clock for Boston by automobile. His route was dependent upon the condition of the roads, but he hoped to reach Boston by early evening.

Mr. Sargent, in outlining what he had seen, declared: "It is a peculiarity of our people not to tell their troubles," but he estimated Vermont's physical losses at $20,000,000 and asserted there must be immediate relief.

Farmer Hurt by Auto in Flood Driven Insane

Northfield, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—The New England flood has sent one man to a hospital for the insane. Joseph Cimbalisty lost his home when the Connecticut River overran his farm here.

While he was removing his family, livestock and furniture to higher ground he was struck and seriously injured by an automobile. After treatment of his injuries at the Franklin County Hospital it was found that his experiences had affected his mind and he has been taken to the State Hospital at Northampton.

5 Flood Disease Cases in Bay State Region

The first cases of disease caused by the flood in Western Massachusetts were today reported to the State department of public health.

Two cases of pneumonia and one of diphtheria were listed in Becket, one case of influenza in Gill and one diphtheria case in Ludlow.

University Turns Out 800 to Work in Flood Area

Burlington, Vt., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Eight hundred students of the University of Vermont will be working in flood stricken towns by Monday. In order to allow all the men students to assist, the faculty has decided to suspend classes for an entire week beginning Monday.

The medical students have already done much toward checking disease in many of the towns.

AUDIENCE GONE BEFORE SPEECH IS FINISHED

the hall was filled," said Mr. Derby.

He assumed his place on the platform and started to read, in a loud, clear voice to the empty seats, a pamphlet he produced and sent out before the election of Warren G Harding to the presidency.

Mr. Tuck arrived. The newspaper men took seats, as did the stenographer. And the gentleman in the knickers took a chair close up to the rostrum so he would not miss anything.

When he had read, standing, for nearly ten minutes, Mr. Derby took a chair and continued his discourse. The caretaker of the hall brought a pitcher full of ice water and a glass.

Mr. Derby stood again, raising his arms in an eloquent gesture.

HISTORIC MONUMENTS.

"In New York harbor, they tell me, is a statue of Liberty, presented this nation by France. In Charlestown, on Bunker Hill, there is a great shaft to perpetuate the memory of a certain day.

"What they stand for, I stand for!"

In that great hall, rich with memories, there was no sound but the speaker's voice. Peter Faneuil, the French Huguenot, gazed serenely down. George Washington, behind him on the orator's left, was straight-lipped, wondering. The host of all immortals of that Cradle of Liberty—Samuel Adams, John Quincy Adams, General Knox, John Hancock, Abraham Lincoln—stared unseeing from the portraits on the wall.

SAT DOWN AGAIN.

Mr. Derby sat again. He crossed one leg upon the other. In a gray suit, wing collar, black and white tie, he presented a striking figure. His hair and mustache are white as snow.

He spoke of the Federal Reserve System. He spoke of the soil from which "springs all we got—wheat, corn, barley, rye." The photographer stirred restlessly at the last word.

Mr. Tuck arose and departed. A market man, in smock, came in for two minutes. Went out. A little later the stenographer closed her notebook and left. Reporter and photographer walked quietly from the hall.

Only Mr. Derby and the man in the knickers remained and after a time the man in knickers strolled out, too.

George Derby, who acts and preaches patriotism, sat there alone upon the platform, talking to an empty hall.

Rufus Choate, General Warren and Robert Treat Paine, looked down. Charles Sumner, Commodore Preble and Rear Admiral Winslow did not change expression.

And when Mr. Derby was done there was neither applause nor questions for there was none to applaud or query. George Derby himself departed and the immortals were alone again to talk things over.

FROWN ON RELEASE OF CATTLE FRAUD CONVICT

Release of Raymond L. Fuller of Shrewsbury, serving a four months' jail sentence for complicity in the cattle fraud scandal of a few months ago, petitioned for by a score of local officials and ministers, is being frowned upon by the State board of parole. The present attitude of the members is that no clemency should be extended. They believe it to be the opening wedge for the release of five or six other prisoners, convicted and sent to jail for the same offense.

Care of Babies

Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a Teaspoonful dose of castor oil does so much good. And it is so pleasant to take. Taste it yourself, and you'll know why "Children Cry for It."

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or when you even suspect the approach of constipation, or diarrhea. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria. See how quickly all fretfulness or wakefulness will cease!

Only one word of warning: the above advice is true of genuine Castoria." The kind called Fletcher's, bearing Fletcher's signature is genuine—and does not contain opiates or any other drug that can harm your baby. Other preparations may be just as free from harm; the writer does not know as to that, but does know one family whose children will never make the experiment!

"SPECIAL NOTE: With every bottle of genuine Fletcher's Castoria is wrapped a book on "Care and Feeding of Babies," worth its weight in gold to every mother or prospective mother.

30 CAUGHT IN MEDFORD DRY CRUSADE

Thirty alleged liquor law violators of Medford, many of whom were unaware they were under police notice, were served summonses today by the Medford police in a sweeping drive against drug stores, general stores, shops and residences in the city.

Some of the "papers" are the result of recent raids by the Medford police, but this class is outnumbered by the alleged dispensers, who, police claim, have served their investigators unwittingly.

Writes 4,000 Letters to Wife Who Died 13 Years Ago

Sioux City, Ia., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Mathis Brown, seventy, died here Tuesday, thirteen years after the death of his wife. Among his belongings a bundle of more than 4,000 letters, all addressed to the dead wife, were found.

The letters had been written daily since her death and were carefully filed away.

UNVEIL TABLET AT CRYPT OF JOHN QUINCY ADAMS

A tablet marking the burial crypt of John Quincy Adams, sixth President of the United States, was unveiled today in the First Parish Unitarian Church, Quincy, known as the "Church of the Presidents." The tablet was given by the Abigail Phillips Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. It bears the inscription:

"John Quincy Adams, diplomat, Senator, Congressman, Secretary of State; negotiated the treaty of peace with England, 1814; sixth President of the United States, 1767-1848."

Mrs. James L. Kerr, regent, presented the tablet and it was accepted by Rev. Fred Allen Weil, pastor of the church.

MELLEN, ONCE HEAD OF NEW HAVEN, DEAD

turn for the worse and death came suddenly. A physician's bulletin attributed death to cerebral hemorrhage.

Mr. Mellen is survived by four daughters, Marion Foster Mellen of New Haven, Ct.; Kathryn, Candice and Priscilla, all of this city; three sons, Graham of Brookline, Amory of Tampa, Fla., and Raymond of Utica, N. Y.

He also leaves a sister, Mrs. Herbert G. Abbott of this city.

From $25 a month clerk with the Northern New Hampshire Railroad to head of the Northern Pacific and the New York, New Haven & Hartford, was the leap made by Charles S. Mellen.

Born at Lowell, August 16, 1851, Mr. Mellen at 18, while trying to make up his mind which college he would attend, accepted the clerkship in preference, and climbed rapidly in the railroad world. In 1884 he became general superintendent of the Boston & Lowell, four years later joining the Union Pacific system, and in a year rose from general purchasing agent to general traffic manager.

In 1892 he became general manager of the New York & New England, and then vice-president of the New Haven, in 1897, being sent to build up the Northern Pacific by J. P. Morgan. Six years later he was recalled to head the New Haven, his regime ending in disaster.

The New Haven made several deals during this period, one being the merger which obtained control of the Boston & Maine and which cost many millions.

Mr. Mellen was always proud of being called "Morgan's man," and insisted that but for the banker's death time would have justified the New Haven's outside investments in the belief that would have accrued to New England through successful consolidation. He said that Mr. Morgan, a few months before he died, was about to finance the New Haven's requirements with a stock issue to have been underwritten at $120 a share.

When the merger with the Boston & Maine was accomplished, Mr. Mellen succeeded Lucius Tuttle as president of the dominated road. A short time later he publicly announced a new policy for the road, a feature of which was the determination to keep out of New Hampshire politics.

BEACON OIL SELLS GAS IN N. Y. FOR 12 CENTS

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Offerings of gasoline at 12 cents a gallon in filling stations of the Beacon Oil Company, a Massachusetts concern, today are expected to lead to a price-cutting war by other distributors. The price quoted by the company is the lowest here this year. Other companies have been charging from 16 to 20 cents.

The low gasoline prices quoted in New York were described by Vice-President Powers of the Beacon Oil Company as introductory prices in new stations. No change in price is contemplated here, he said.

ARREST AGENT OF JERRY'S ATTORNEY

avenue, West Somerville, was arrested on request of District Attorney Bushnell, Judge Dillon issuing a capias upon which he will be brought into court tomorrow to show cause why he shall not be adjudged in contempt of court and committed.

He was held without bail and was remanded into the custody of the sheriff.

SACCO CASE CITED.

His arrest followed his testimony in support of an affidavit made by himself in which he declared that J. Kay of Hancock street, Cambridge, had quoted Attorney M. Dunbar, a juror, as saying he made up his mind to convict Gedzium before he heard the evidence and had caused other jurors to find Gedzium guilty.

The sensation that was caused by Court's sudden arrest was followed by a hearing on the second motion brought by Attorney Weeks. Both motions were then denied after the district attorney had declared he regarded them as "an attempt to make the case of 'Jerry the Pole' another Sacco-Vanzetti case, dragged out for years."

Exceptions to the denial of the motions were taken by Attorney Weeks, indicating that he contemplates an appeal to the Supreme Court, which already has before it an appeal on new trial motions made and denied months ago.

FACES ELECTRIC CHAIR.

Gedzium was convicted of the murder of Edward C. Ross, Cambridge bank messenger, in a payroll robbery at the Ward Baking Company plant on September 29, 1923.

The chief witness in support of the second new trial motion was Frank Perillo, prisoner at the Bridgewater State Farm, who was taken to court under guard. Perillo, upon taking the witness stand, promptly admitted that statements he had made to the defense attorney were false.

Perillo had given Attorney Weeks names of five men who, he said, had gone to him a few days before the holdup and asked him to take part in it.

"The names are fictitious," he said today. "I mean those men never talked with me about that holdup.

Before Perillo was put on the witness stand, Kay and Dunbar testified and denied Court's statements. Kay declared Court threatened to "get the police" to make him sign an affidavit he had prepared.

Attorney Weeks asserted at the close of the hearing that Kay went to his office and volunteered what information he gave about the Gedzium trial and that he, Weeks, had no reason but to use it for the benefit of his client.

DRUGGIST, WIFE, 2 OTHERS KILLED BY QUEER POISON

Baltimore, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—To the cycle of death in a druggist, his wife and a friend yielded to a powerful and mysterious poison, police today believed a fourth victim would be joined.

Coroner Horton, in announcing that an investigation of the fourth strange death was under way, said that the victim—a man whose name was not revealed—frequented the drug store several nights each week.

Mrs. Helen McCloskey Curran, wife of a druggist, and first victim, died on Monday night. Albert A. Curran, her husband, fell into convulsions from which he never rallied, on Tuesday night. Merrill Stevens, a tugboat captain, terrified by Curran's end, applied under a fictitious name for hospital treatment. Leaving the hospital with the statement that he felt all right, he was seized with convulsions and died ten minutes later. Police believe he knew he had been poisoned.

Identify Man by Finger Prints Sent Over Seas by Radio

London, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—The successful use of radio to exchange finger prints between the police of Scotland Yard and Chicago was announced here today.

Finger prints exchanged by wireless enabled the London police to identify a man held here as one wanted in Chicago.

The authorities indicated that the man would be returned to Chicago.

REPEAL OF AUTO TAX ASKED

Washington, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Repeal of the tax on automobiles was asked of President Coolidge by a delegation of automobile manufacturers.

Declaring that they represented "millions of users" of automobiles, the delegation said automobile sales people are required to carry the tax as an item in their overhead without any profit for from six to eighteen months on the major portion of their busines which is done on the installment plan.

Included in the delegation were A. R. Erskine, president of the Studebaker Corporation; Alvan Macauley, president of the Packard Motor Car Company; Charles W Nash, president of the Nash Motor Car Company, and Arthur T. Waterfall, vice-president of the Dodge Brothers, Incorporated.

"FEMALE PONZI" ADMITS $17,000 SWINDLING GAME

Newark, N. J., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Miss Margaret Malley, middle-aged proprietor of a chain of rooming houses, described by police as a "female Ponzi," has confessed, authorities said today, that she defrauded nine of her friends of $17,000 in an investment scheme.

Miss Malley was arrested in Boston yesterday. Police alleged she prevailed upon her friends and lodgers over a period of four years to invest their savings with her, promising quarterly interest of 20 per cent. The victims, police said, were given to understand that Miss Malley would invest their money in bank stocks paying mythical dividends. Instead, she spent the money refurnishing her rooming establishments.

SALISBURY RUM CASES TOLD TO JURY

Salem, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—A conspiracy to land liquor at Salisbury Beach, involving payments to town officials in 1923, was described to a Superior Court Jury today by Assistant District Attorney Raymond.

The jury had before it the cases of 13 Salisbury residents, including several former town officials, charged for conspiracy to bribe and with conspiracy to violate the liquor laws.

Raymond, in outlining the case for the State, said it would be shown that each of the defendants had played a part in the landing of liquor at the beach. He said the evidence would show that Harold Congdon, former chief of police, and also former selectman of Salisbury, had made the statement that certain sums of money were to be paid to him for each load of liquor landed. He was to disburse this money, giving the selectmen $100 each for each cargo and paying certain sums to others concerned.

Warren H. Frothingham, at one time a beach policeman and also a pilot, Mr. Raymond said, would be shown to have helped land one load of liquor under the direction of Congden and to have piloted boats with other loads.

2 EDNA MAYS IN FILMS NOW; TAKE YOUR PICK

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 17 (I.N.S.).—Edna May Adams and Edna May Cooper, motion picture actresses, today are joint owners of the professional name of Edna May. From now on picture fans will have to decide for themselves who's who.

The actors' branch of the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences has ordered Miss Cooper to withdraw her protest against Miss Adams' use of the name on the ground that the latter young woman was christened Edna May and therefore has shown no intent to trade upon the name of another actress.

Boys Will Eat Light at Banquet; Must Pay for Bonfire

Brockton, Nov. 17.—The barrel crusade, bane of police and Perkins Grammar School authorities since rooters for the championship soccer team staged a bonfire Tuesday night, apparently ended today when Principal Charles Kelley ordered the celebrators to pay for the barrels from money set aside for their annual banquet.

The boys, when police ordered them to replace barrels used for the celebration, confiscated others in different parts of the city. The result now is that the boys will eat light—if at all—at their annual banquet.

FOX TO PRODUCE FILM ON LABOR OF CONVICTS

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Los Angeles, Nov. 17—Some years ago, the Fox Company made a stirring and profitable drama called "The Honor System," starring Miriam Cooper, the former Mrs. Raoul Walsh. The convicts of the South who are lent to the coal barons of the North and have their wages paid to the state was the weighty system described in the above mentioned film. Now comes word from Fox that the Fox Company is making a picture called "Upper Bunk," based on a novel written by Jack Lait, editor of the Washington News. Alfred Green, who will direct Lait's literary dramatization of his whole as a rental of human beings will go South to obtain further data. Graham Baker, one of the Writers now being farmed out, will do the story.

Hobart Bosworth, Dallas Milner, Grant Mitchell, Mary Carr and Lloyd Hughes are cast in the Universal picture, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which Sam Jacobson is directing. Sam has been a director for Universal for a number of years and has had charge of many big productions. He is also a writer of no mean ability, having written the scenario for "Uncle Tom's Cabin" himself.

Sam is acting as nurse, chaperon or what have you? for Mona Ray and Virginia Gray, ages, respectively, twelve and nine. Both girls will dance in the prologue, and Virginia, who was the Angel Eva, will prove that she didn't really go to heaven by letting her public take a good look at her at the Central Theatre. Uncle Tom, they tell me, in spite of theme etc., is going over with the New York public.

SEES MENACE IN UNEDUCATED LAWYERS

A poorly educated lawyer is not only an economic failure but an actual menace to society, Silas H. Strawn, president of the American Bar Association said today at the weekly assembly luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Strawn said he would be unbecoming of him to criticize the policy of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in having pointed out the local requirement of pre-legal education of not two years of eight months each of the present law school course before the student may be admitted to the practice of law in the state.

"Don't you believe, that in time [illegible] will come when [illegible] will [illegible] to pursue [illegible] preparation [illegible] the law [illegible] two years [illegible] the law school should [illegible] residents to pursue a course of three years duration.

The cigar store, on Cressina street East Boston, yielded "alky" splits, the police say, and George E. Doherty of Morris street and Charles McLaughlin of Charlestown.

Believe 'Oldest' Skull Links Man With Apes

Santa Barbara, Cal., Nov. 17 (A.P.)—A skull that Dr. A. H. Gundal, local anthropologist and student of ancient races, believes is older than any known to science, unearthed 18 feet below the surface of a street here while sewers were being laid, is attracting the attention of scientists.

"I believe it comes nearer to connecting man with the ape than anything ever uncovered," said Dr. Gundal.

"It undoubtedly antedates the Neanderthal and Java skulls. I cannot see how he could have made a sound other than a grunt.

"The very large nose does not conform in any respect with the more developed skulls of the human race.

"It indicates that the neck muscles must have been three times the size of the muscles of the man of today and very much like the ape as we know him."

Berne, Switzerland, Nov. 17 (A.P.)—Fifty-nine Chinese men, women and children, ragged, starving and penniless reached Berne today in a sealed railroad car in which they came from Russia, where many of them spent a year or more.

Soviet visas on their papers gave their destination only as Switzerland. Conditions in the car showed it had not been opened since it left Moscow.

It is installed the Chinese arrived in two hotels. The Berne government is asking Moscow why the Soviet government is forcing such an unwelcome gift of Chinese labor upon Switzerland.

Are YOU Willing To Pay Penalty of Kidney Neglect?

Thousands of lives might be saved every year, says an authority, if people would only flush out their kidneys and get rid of body poisons. They seem to forget that the kidneys like the bowels, sometimes get clogged and need flushing occasionally. Without this it is no wonder so many folks have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headache, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach and all sorts of bladder disorders.

There is one mild, safe, ideal method of keeping the kidneys clean and active. You simply take a tablespoonful of JAD SALTS in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days. This is inexpensive, harmless and makes a delightful lithia-water drink. JAD SALTS are made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia. Not only do they flush and stimulate the kidneys, but also help neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritate, thus ending the pain of bladder complaints. You will find this simple recipe a wonder to "put you right." Get a four-ounce bottle of JAD SALTS from your druggist today, try it tomorrow morning, then see for yourself.

Working People

Love the good things and get them

ONE fine thing about America is this: The working people get the best. The finest foods are served in cottages.

All food makers testify to that. Their finest creations are largely bought by women who spend the wages of men who labor hard.

So we find it with La Touraine Coffee. Splendid hotels and mansions serve it, famous restaurants, expensive inns. But it is also served in factories, like the General Electric, where workers pay five cents per cup. It is served at many lunch rooms. The largest use is in homes of people who work hardest for their money.

Our business is to make the finest coffee that the world has known. It has been for 20 years. It is made to please, in the maximum way, the most critical of coffee lovers. And it does. But we strive above all to bring these delights, without extra cost, to cottages and bungalows. And we do.

Please try La Touraine. Order it of your grocer today. Compare it with any coffee you know. If you find it supreme in flavor and aroma, demand it always at your grocer's. If you ever find another coffee better, go to that. But learn what we have done.

Why they use La Touraine Coffee

Because it holds the top place in New England, the birthplace of fine coffees.

Because experts regard it the supreme result of 237 years of coffee development.

Because the four finest coffees that grow are combined in this blend. Each comes from a different country, each is the pride of a nation. Three of them cost 50% more than ordinary coffees. One is so rare that only 30,000 bags are grown yearly.

Because the blend is exclusive and secret. No other blend resembles it. Experts spent twenty years in perfecting this ideal flavor and aroma.

Because R. J. Butler, the noted coffee expert, personally tests and selects every coffee in this blend. Because La Touraine, despite its supreme quality, costs no more than other high-grade coffees.

At All Grocers

They serve it

In extra-fine hotels, like
Ritz-Carlton, Boston

SALLY'S SHOULDERS

by Beatrice Burton

Author of "The HOLLYWOOD GIRL" etc.

The Story of a Boston Girl, Clever and Pretty

READ THIS FIRST

SALLY JEROME, 20, is the mainstay of her family. Her father had deserted his wife and his children. Besides Sally there are the twins, BEAU and MILLIE, aged 21. Millie, the family beauty, is always losing jobs when her employers "get gay" with her.

Sally works at home in the mornings, for her mother is a semi-invalid. In the afternoons she works for MR. PEEVEY, an elderly eccentric, who does a small mail-order business in Chauncy street. TED SLOAN, who lives with his mother in the flat below the Jerome flat in Hemenway street, is a "dancing fool," and Sally has become very friendly with him. But when he tries to make love to her she pulls him up short. Sally sees a handsome man in the elevator. She learns that he is John Nye, with an office across the hall.

CHAPTER IV

IT was 3 o'clock that afternoon before Sally finally set the lukewarm milk and the whole-wheat biscuits on Mr Peevey's desk.

"Just three hours after my regular lunch time!" he snapped out at her, pushing his glasses back on his forehead and scowling up at her. "That's never do, my girl. I've got to have my food on time or not at all."

Sally might have pointed out to him that it wasn't her fault that he had made a dentist's appointment at his regular lunch time.

She might have reminded him that he had not stepped into the office until 2 o'clock that afternoon. In fact there were two or three sharp things that she might have said to him.

But she never even thought of them. Her mind was so filled with the thought of John Nye as was the bad fact she was too eager to let Mr. Peevey—or "Old Peevish," as Millie called him always—bother her.

All the long hot afternoon, while she typed Mr. Peevey's letters, while she took down his slow, fussy dictation, her thoughts were busy with John Nye.

How old was he? Was he married? She was sure that he wasn't. He did not look like the type of man who would speak to a distant relative and then never call or trouble if he were married. There was an honest, steadfast look in Nye's level gray eyes of an honest and decisive sort.

Words, may be, actions may lie, and faces may lie, but a person's eyes will give him away 99 times out of 100.

"I wish I knew him better," thought Sally Jerome, who never had wished that of any man before in her puny life. "But he'll probably never look at me again. So that's that, and I may as well forget him."

She tried to—but without any success at all.

At five o'clock Mr Peevey put on his sun-browned Panama, and announced that he was going to "knock off for the day."

"You'd better start home early tonight, Miss Jerome," he said. "It's pretty hot weather and you look as if a good night's sleep would do you a world of good."

As he opened the door she caught a glimpse of the office across the hall. John Nye was standing in the middle of it, talking to a young woman in white.

He looked up and his eyes met Sally's for just an instant. Then the door swung to.

It was 6 o'clock before Sally had finished Mr Peevey's letters. He was always advising her to start home early, and then giving her so much work to do that she could never possibly finish it by 5:30—the time she was supposed to leave every day. In his fussy little way Mr. Peevey was as heartless as a Turk.

At three minutes after 6 Sally closed the door and stepped out into the sizzling marble quietness of the hall.

The door of John Nye's office was

N.H. TO KEEP NEEDHAM WOMAN

Heeds Petition of 600 in Favor of Agent Who Is Educating Daughter

Needham Junction rejoiced today with the news that Mrs. Bertha Hickey's job is safe.

The signatures of 600 Needham folks on a petition for her mention as the Needham Junction depot agent of the New Haven Railroad brought an order today that she should stay on the job.

Mrs. Hickey was born a Needham and in Needham she married and gave birth to a daughter. The daughter, now 16, will go to college next year. The husband died 12 years ago.

Fifteen years ago, when Bickey was the station agent, he fell victim to consumption.

"It was then I started in to work with him, to help him," Mrs. Hickey said.

When Bickey died, his wife took over the job, fully competent, she held it 12 years. A few months ago she was told other work would be arranged for her and the job had been alloted to another of the order of Railroad Telegraphers. It was then Needham folks got busy.

CAMBRIDGE MAN HELD FOR ATTACK ON GIRL

Charles H. French, twenty-four, of Franklin street, Cambridge, was held by the police today in connection with the attack and holdup of Miss Augusta Rosencrants of No. 478 Broadway, Cambridge.

Following a visit to the home of Miss Rosencrants, still suffering from the beating she received, French was held on a charge of robbery, the police said.

At the time he was picked up in Central Square, French wore a white fedora hat and a long, black moolah coat. He denied all knowledge of the attack on Miss Rosencrants, who was waylaid on her way home from a shopping tour. After beating the girl, the assailant seized her purse and fled.

LEGISLATURE TO ACT ON BILL FOR STOLEN COAT

DALLINGER IN PLEA TO WOMEN TO SAVE TARIFF

Urging members of the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts to preach the benefits of protective tariff, Congressman Frederick W. Dallinger in his declared a Democratic victory in 1928 would put the present tariff laws of the country in peril and break down the high standard of living in this country.

"The Republican Party alone is responsible for the American system of protection, he said. "The Democratic Party, through its Southern leaders, has always opposed protective tariff. Industries have been wrecked in previous Democratic years when the low tariff policy of the party operated.

"Steel and manufacturers are bound to support low tariff measures through fear of new competition. It is the duty of the United States to keep the standard of living high and set an example to the rest of the world but the opponents of a protective tariff want to drag us down to a European standard."

MAGRUDER HAS JOINED 'I WON'T TALK' LIST

Washington, Nov. 17 (A.P.)—Rear-Admiral Thomas P. Magruder who is on "waiting orders" as the result of his criticism of the Navy Department, has cancelled all of his engagements for public speeches for reasons he does not care to discuss.

While Admiral Magruder declined to comment on the cancellation, other than to say he "will not make any public addresses for the time being," it is understood that some of his friends among both of the two major political parties want to withdraw from the political arena for the present.

Dealers with whom he had dealings in New York on Dec. 2 and 3 with Norman Angell and Lady Angell, keeping her name among the prospects for Admiral Magruder.

The admiral was to have spoken tonight on the navy and its needs at a private dinner in Philadelphia.

Rear Admiral Magruder was due to speak in Tremont Temple on December 6 in a debate on Norman Angell's proposal to outlaw war. Both Admiral Magruder and Angell declined to debate "Shall Armaments Be Abolished?"

SWAT KING DONE WITH THEATRES

"Big Bam" Spurns $100,000 to Enjoy Golf; Pays Visit to Daughter Here

By WIN BROOKS

George Herman Ruth, man of home runs and many aliases, has spurned theatrical offers totalling nearly $100,000 for the next four months.

This time, in the very pink of personal condition right now, [illegible] to stay the way he is, [illegible] ball season rolls around, [illegible] he is going to [illegible] every single game [illegible] new home run record.

Babe took enough time off from knocking the kids football out of the Academy of the Assumption in Wellesley, and rapping them around and far down at the Wolaston Golf Club, to speak a few brief words on his plans for next year.

"I was never in better shape than I am right now, after a hard season and the series. Last year, in theatricals and the movies I worked a little too hard. Not this Winter."

LIKES HIS GOLF.

Babe "worked too hard" in Winter and laid more horseshoes in the rightfield bleachers this summer than ever before. [illegible] good week in this Winter, but golf links more suited to keeping the waistline small and the shoulders heavy. American League pitchers please copy.

Babe is in town for a few days only. Today [illegible] to the Academy in Wellesley to see his seven year old daughter, Dorothy, who is a pupil there. He [illegible] the kid's football at the boys' school, all over the lot, knocking balls with everybody and about a happy couple of noses with [illegible].

The [illegible] Babe's [illegible] months [illegible] golf [illegible] not [illegible] ever did on the mound, and [illegible] Wolaston was [illegible]. The Babe's [illegible] club of [illegible] [illegible] founding [illegible] and [illegible] with Tom Mahon [illegible] the club pro. And [illegible] for ten [illegible] South Boston's own [illegible] James A. Gallivan, "Jimmy" Galli was laid up in [illegible] thusiasm. And he got a lot, an awful lot, of exercise.

JUST LIKE A "HOMER"

If one had any doubt [illegible] Babe was keeping in shape [illegible] only to [illegible] eighteen holes and [illegible] box [illegible] down the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] game in eight [illegible].

"The Babe is as [illegible] the devil! If he's [illegible] whammer! If his [illegible] and far. He gets a [illegible] body lung into [illegible]

"Have hard work getting away from it," he said. "It's the old swing at the plate."

Babe uses no [illegible] desire to hit a ball [illegible] down into it—and he gets better results [illegible] just taking [illegible] grass. Often he was ahead of Jack Gray from the tee, and the Scottish man is one of the best [illegible].

AT THE WATER HOLE

[illegible] said it couldn't be done, [illegible] sent a long one [illegible] corner and onto the fairway [illegible] elbow hole—a good [illegible].

"Four bagger," he remarked.

GOT EYE ON NEXT YEAR.

Later the Babe and Peter Murphy, the club champion, took on Peggy and McEnaney in a golf ball match.

"Good to get back to Boston again," said the Babe. "The last time I've had in a year was up at the academy with the kids."

He'll be here a few days longer, playing golf most of the time. He'll spend the holidays in Chicago and then probably go on a hunting trip.

"And next Spring I'll be as fit as a fiddle and ready for another record and another series."

He stuck his head under the pump and the caddy worked the handle. He had played forty-five holes of golf, hard, fast golf, and wasn't even tired.

"Just say I'm feelin' fine and that I'll be in there next year knockin' 'em out."

Football for Fun | No Scrimmage
Good Idea | Few Plays
Sampson Proves It | Tufts Undefeated

By NICK FLATLEY

SAMPSON LETS KIDS HAVE GOOD TIME

FOOTBALL should be played for the fun of it, mused Arthur Sampson, who coaches Tufts teams, so I guess I'll let the kids have a good time.

That was last Summer, and it took considerable musing. Football, as our college boys go to it, is a stern and serious business, and a sad one more often than not.

Nick Flatley

The coach, injecting some real pleasure into it, would be subjected to a terrible panning if his young heroes were smacked and smeared. But Arthur's pupils had been bumped quite a bit the year before. They lost three games in a row after they had been leading and apparently headed for glory.

"That made me think," Arthur explains. "I had to figure they were overworked. They had the stuff, but it petered out. So the week before the final game, I decided to try something new. I never let them go near the field. The old way used to be to whang the kids to death in the final drive.

"I took my team to the movies one afternoon when they reported for practice. The next day I led them on a hike through the Middlesex Fells. The third day I chased them home. They didn't see a football or hear a word about the game until Saturday. Then they went to it like a lot of wild men. They just naturally whaled the tar out of the other team."

That experience was responsible for the Tufts coaching program this season. Tufts, the only unbeaten and untied team in the East, has won seven straight games. The Jumbos have scored 186 points to 13 garnered by opponents.

One enemy score came on a 70-yard forward—no team can help that much—the other arrived after a blocked punt. Just a couple of accidents. The team has been running wild, and will close a great season Saturday with a final victory, unless the perverse god of football wrecks the machinery.

COACH SAMPSON GETS A LOT OF FUN OUT OF HIS WORK, AS WELL AS LETTING THE YOUNGSTERS ENJOY IT. A HAPPY TEAM ALWAYS HAS THE RIGHT SPIRIT.

Tufts will be offered spots on some big schedules for next year, but will turn them down. A good coach believes in playing always in his own class.

REMARKABLE PRACTICE SESSIONS

SOME very remarkable football practice was put on at Tufts this Fall. The tackling dummy was never toured. The bucking machines, against which unfortunate linemen break their heads and shoulders, was never wheeled onto the field. The team only had six scrimmage sessions in the entire Fall. And those came early.

The second team—usually the unfortunate mob that takes all the hammering of the varsity and gets no reward or praise, nothing but knocks—had a schedule of its own. The subs played six games. That made life happy for them.

The team practised one hour a day, so the boys were never fagged and dead when they went home to their meals. For Coach Sampson spurned the idea of a training table. He thinks that 20 or 30 kids, kept too closely associated, are likely to get on one another's nerves.

The guards and tackles occasionally shifted themselves into the backfield and got the feel of handling a football. On a big team the poor linemen hardly ever get the kick of running with the egg. The athletes had forward passing, kicking and sprinting contests. Result, the whole team knew how to handle a football when occasion rose.

Blackboard talks were given, and all squeezed into the hour listed for practice; no night stuff, or extra hours when young minds should be relaxing.

THE TUFTS SYSTEM WAS HIGHLY REVOLUTIONARY. BUT IT WORKED. THERE CAN BE NO CLAIMS OF OVEREMPHASIS, WHICH IS SUCCESS IN ITSELF.

SAMPSON HAS SOLID GRID IDEAS

TUFTS is a small college, which has no great body of alumni helping along athletic teams. There were only 40 candidates out this Fall to answer the first practice call. Harvard, for instance, has more than a hundred players out for the freshman team.

This little squad was augmented after the first week, when the word went around that football, under Sampson, was a good time and not drudgery. Each kid had some shot at doing what each healthy kid dreams about. That generated an enthusiasm, which was in great part responsible for the fine Tufts record.

Young Mister Sampson—he has been a college coach for just two years—has solid football ideas. His team had but five running plays and three forward pass plays.

The running plays were drilled every day, so that the athletes, subs and regulars, knew their assignments instinctively. They couldn't go wrong. They were driven to get the knack of perfect timing in a few plays, rather than hope for it, while struggling with a lot of trick stuff.

Good coaches claim that any play in which every man carries out his assignment will gain against any kind of defense. Tufts is a pretty good proof of that.

Tufts never scouted an opponent. The coach believed that if his young men know their stuff, they wouldn't have to worry about the other fellows. It's his idea, that foreknowledge of enemy tactics often gives that enemy the game's best foundation for deception.

A lot of strange gridiron notions, young Mister Sampson owns, but his team's record will silence all critics and skeptics. And Tufts, if some big college doesn't grab successful Arthur, will be attracting a lot of schoolboy stars first thing you know.

Grid Player Dies After First Game

McCook, Neb., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Jack Murray, McCook High School student, who played in his first football game of the season last Friday with Stanton High School, died today from injuries received during the game.

ILLINOIS BOARD O. K.'S WALKER-BERLENBACH GO

Chicago, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—The Illinois State Athletic Commission has approved a ten-round catchweight bout between Mickey Walker, and die-weight champion, and Paul Berlenbach, one-time holder of the 175-pound title, for the Coliseum on November 25.

Suit Against Gene Tunney Dismissed

Chicago, Nov. 17 (I.N.S.).—Judge Denis J. Normoyle in the Circuit Court here today dismissed the suit for $15,000 alleging breach of contract brought by Thomas McHale, generally known as Gene Tunney's former "social secretary."

McHale sued Tunney for alleged breaking of a contract for his services as secretary.

Attorney Floyd Ianham, representing the heavyweight champion, informed the court that McHale had not filed a declaration in the suit, as required by law. McHale was not in court.

Yale Breaks Out With Rash Determination

FLOWERS LEAVES $100,000

Wife and Daughter of "Fighting Parson" Remembered by Former Champion

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—With a prayer on his lips, Theodore "Tiger" Flowers, the "praying deacon" of the prize ring, died in a private hospital here last night following a minor operation.

The colorful "Tiger," whose fistic career extended over nine years, had been a picture figure in ring [illegible]. A clever, speedy "southpaw," with an attack that never once slackened despite setbacks, Flowers fought 120 fights before winning the 160-pound title. He was [illegible] two years old and met all the leading middleweights of his time, also light heavyweights and a few welterweights.

Cag in the "Tiger" bathrobe [illegible] the Bible [illegible] head of a [illegible] cat across the shoulders—a [illegible] [illegible] days all over [illegible] the fashion George [illegible] when the world's [illegible] champions climbed [illegible] ring ratings table in the middleweight division. As the anaesthetic was being administered the "Tiger," a deacon in his church at Atlanta, Ga., murmured:

"If I should die before I wake, I pray thee, Lord, my soul to take."

Without resuming more than semi-consciousness following the operation, performed by Dr. Frank Fowers died suddenly at 8:30 p.m. when his heart collapsed. He was thought to be out of danger. The surgeon pronounced the death due to "status lymphaticus."

Little more than a year ago, Harry Greb, who beat his title to Flowers in a decision bout at Madison Square Garden, Feb. 26, 1926, died under similar circumstances following an operation for removal of bone from his nose. Flowers lost his crown to Mickey Walker on a 10-round decision in Chicago, Dec. 3.

Dr. Fralick, surgeon extraordinary to fighters who have suffered injuries, declared that Flowers' death was "one in 100,000." He said the boxer was in "splendid condition" before the operation and had rallied well.

DEATH SUDDEN.

Flowers' death occurred so suddenly, Dr. Fralick said, that he was unable to reach the patient's side from another room at the call of a second physician before the end had come.

The colorful "Tiger," whose fistic career extended over nine years, had been a unique figure in ring history. A clever, speedy "southpaw," with an attack that never once slackened despite setbacks, Flowers fought 120 fights before winning the 160-pound title. He was 32 years old and met all the leading middleweights of his time.

MR. BOSTON

By Jack Conway

IT was with a heavy heart and heavier step that Mr. Boston entered the Sporting Department today.

"The ring game has lost one of its most colorful and satisfactory performers, and those who were intimate with him a real friend, in the passing of Tiger Flowers," mourned the veteran.

"There was just a trace of tears in his usually smiling face and a lump was seen to rise more than once in his throat as he went on to tell of the long, hard road the Georgia Tornado traveled to gain ring recognition.

"Flowers started boxing about ten years ago," continued the veteran, "and from the time of his first appearance in Atlanta until the Grim Reaper cut him down at the height of his career, scandal never touched him.

"What better epitaph could mortal man desire?

"Born and reared in a country where men of his race and color are ignored, and no encouragement is offered them to rise above their environment, the Atlanta parson advanced step by step in his chosen profession until he became middleweight champion of the world.

"He didn't have an easy time scaling the heights. Men of his color never do. That he succeeded is ample proof of his ability.

"He was a fighter, a great fighter. He proved that by his ability to come back after two knockouts at the hands of Jack Delaney and wrest the middleweight crown from Harry Greb, one of the greatest ring men of his time, and who, like the Tiger, fell a victim to a minor surgical operation.

"But above all, Flowers was first, last and always a gentleman. That's why there is so much grief over his passing wherever followers of the ring game meet today.

"His never took advantage of an opponent. He leaned backward to be fair. He fought a dozen times or more in the Hub, and never committed a questionable act except when he hit Lou Bogash low in Boston one night, and that blow was obviously unintentional.

"That foul showed the real Tiger Flowers. In his dressing room after the fight, he cried bitterly. Not because he had lost the fight but because he had been accused of committing a foul. He never cared much about the result of a fight providing he was credited with a clean, game [illegible].

"Then, pulling himself together, he grabbed his manager, Walk Miller and pleaded, 'Don't ever let my mother know that I lost on a foul. Wire her that I lost, but don't go into details.'

"The rest of the world could think what it wanted, but his mother must never hear that her son had been found guilty of unfairness, even though it was admittedly unintentional.

"Is it any wonder that a man of this character became the most popular figure of his race to ever grace the prize ring?

"WALK MILLER once told me how the firm of Miller & Flowers was conducted. In my opinion, it is the best of the hundreds of stories I have heard told about the Parson, because it shows the negro's strong faith in his fellowmen.

"'Flowers not only never asked the name of his next opponent or anything about his record, which is truly remarkable, as anyone who [illegible] ever managed fighters will attest,' said Miller, 'but he never even inquired about how much money he was to receive. I know that sounds like a lot of applesauce, but it is the absolute truth.

"'I would take him on a tour of the country, putting him in the ring as often as three times a week, and he would never ask for a cent of money.

"'When the tour was completed, I would hand him his earnings, along with an itemized account of expenses, etc.

"'The Deacon would pocket the money and tear up the itemized account without even a glance at it.

"'Whatever I gave him, whatever anybody gave him, was all that was due him, according to his fine philosophy of life.'

"Walker never took advantage of the negro's good nature, however, for the Tiger left a fortune in excess of $100,000.

"'A great fighter, a real champion, a true sportsman and a gentleman, everybody who knew him lost a real friend when Tiger Flowers was called to his reward.'"

ADAMS WANTS RICKARD TO COME TO HUB

"Tex Rickard will be in town next week. Then, and not until then, will we be able to give out any official information on the new North Station auditorium and the use of Braves Field for outdoor sporting events," said Charles Adams, vice president of the Braves and owner of the Boston Bruins, when questioned about the rumor that Rickard would stage fights at the Wigwam next Summer.

"A new sports arena at the North Station for indoor attractions and the use of Braves Field for outdoor shows are virtually a certainty," continued Adams, "but nothing definite will be settled until Rickard comes to town.

"It would be to advantage to not only the promoters of Boston, but also to those connected with Madison Square Garden if Rickard succeeds in his plans.

"We desire to have championship competition here in Boston in boxing, baseball, hockey and all other branches of athletics.

"This can be done with the proposed new auditorium and one of the largest baseball parks in the country available.

"The Madison Square Garden Corporation is in a position to put over big sporting events and get the best big attractions. We need these attractions in Boston."

Crosby May Lead Harvard Eleven Next Season

Joe Crosby may be the next Harvard football captain.

The star Crimson halfback, according to present indications, will not complete his college course in June and plans to return to Harvard next year. Because of the fact that he was ineligible for football all last season, he could play next Fall and would be the logical man to lead the team.

Crosby is now suffering from a large boil on the tip of his nose and may not be able to play against Yale in the Stadium Saturday.

Burden on French With Crosby Out

With Joe Crosby lying flat on his back in the Stillman Infirmary, and thus rendering his chances of starting impossible, Coach Arnold Horween has gathered the remains of his squad and today has selected his probable starting lineup.

With the opening whistle starts [illegible] Crimson [illegible] clash on Saturday Harvard will probably line up with Hep Strong and Gordon Douglas at end, Captain Charley Pratt and Tim Clark at tackle, Dan Simonds and Jack Parkinson at guard, Dudley Bell at center, Gordon Brown at quarter, with Art French, Dave Guarnaccia and Jo Potter rounding out the backfield.

Coach Horween would be quite reluctant to have any one say that this is his lineup.

The 28-year-old mentor takes special pride in withholding an announcement of his starting team. He has refused the newspapers the right to take a picture of the first team today, thus breaking an old-time custom at Harvard.

Whether Horween sanctions this lineup or not, the above eleven represents the cream of the talent at Cambridge, and the eleven that had been working together all week.

STILL CHANCE FOR CROSBY.

Little did Harvard men think a week ago when Bruce Caldwell, Yale's best back, was deprived of [illegible] Harvard, that the Crimson's best back would sit on the sidelines on Saturday. But Fate in this case, seems to pick no favorite, for Caldwell and Crosby will [illegible] grandstand seats on the [illegible] benches.

A noteworthy thing about these seats is that their worth is somewhere in the range of $20 to $25 apiece, at the prevailing prices of the speculators. But this does not seem to afford any consolation in this case.

Crosby has been given an outside chance of playing part of the game by the doctors.

This morning he leaves the Infirmary and will attend his first practice of the week this afternoon. The Harvard coaches have ordered a special helmet with a nosegaard attached for the injured back.

Crosby himself seems to play this game. He is a [illegible] but can come [illegible] his colleagues [illegible] this spring should he pay [illegible] have there is an excellent chance [illegible] players would present him with the captaincy which would settle all question as to his return next Fall.

BURDEN FALLS ON FRENCH.

The permanent loss of Crosby has diminished the punch of the attack of the Crimson attack several points. The Crosby off-tackle play was always good for a gain when the rest of the offensive array was being stopped. Harvard has only Guarnaccia to fill this role but the willing Italian lad is not of the shifty, wiry type as his predecessor.

Arthur French, brilliant but brittle carrier, has been called upon to bear the brunt of the carrying attack on Saturday. His new role practically broadcasts the fact that Harvard is going to depend on the end run as it never had occasion to before.

Today is practically the last real practice for the Crimson. Horween has ordered a long drill for this afternoon. Tomorrow the eleven will merely assemble to show their wares before the student body in the Stadium. Friday evening they will have supper at the Oakley Country Club but will return to their rooms for a night. Saturday they will attempt the almost impossible feat of defeating Yale.

Tonight there will be a huge mass meeting and rally at the Harvard Union.

FLOWERS WAS GREAT SHOWMAN

Famous Parson Fought Many Hard Ring Battles Here

many light heavyweights and a few heavyweights.

In the past year Flowers fought 19 times without loss in a campaign to force Mickey Walker back into the ring for another title match. Only yesterday Madison Square Garden authorities served notice on Walker that he must agree to meet Flowers under terms of an old contract or legal measures would be taken to bring about the match.

It was in preparation for this expected title "shot" that the "Parson" underwent yesterday's operation, Walk Miller, his manager, and others of conquering had left bunches of hardened cartilage over Flowers' eyes, he said, as well as a slightly "cauliflower" right ear, which Flowers had by his profession.

"I went with Flowers into the operating room," Miller said, "and he acted just as though he were going into the ring for an easy fight. He was in splendid shape, out quite a few pounds. He took along the little black Bible that he has carried in his grip wherever he has gone. He has had tenderloins lately, and the bandages over his eyes hurt when he was hit. But we expected no trouble.

"How's your wife and kids now?' I asked him before he took the anesthetic.

"'No, sir,' he replied.

"That was the third remark this great fellow, who talked but rarely, had made to me in the whole day. Once before he said 'yes, sir,' and again 'she' is,' in emphasizing something I had said. Earlier in the day Flowers made his will, bequeathing property valued at about $100,000 to his wife and six-year-old daughter, Vera Lee, in Atlanta."

Flowers was born in Camilla, Ga., August 8 1895 in a ring career that stretched through almost 200 battles, he met defeat frequently, but always came back to battle harder for advancement. In his entire career Flowers suffered eight knockouts.

Flowers wound up his career last Saturday night here with a four-round knockout of Leo Gates, Indian heavyweight. Only a few nights before he had fought Maxie Rosenbloom, New York middleweight, to a draw in Detroit.

Flowers Most Satisfactory Performer to Ever Show Here

Tiger Flowers was the most satisfactory performer ever to step into a local ring. He won over Lou Bogash, Pat McCarthy, Pal Reed, Ray Newman and others. In every appearance in this city Flowers attracted capacity houses.

The defeat he suffered in the Hub was at the hands of Lou Bogash. The Dutch was given a verdict on a foul when Flowers appeared to have hit him low.

The Deacon was heartbroken when the verdict was handed down. The blow was unintentional. The Boston fight lovers knew this and gave the Tiger a wonderful ovation as he stepped out of the ring.

In his dressing room after the fight Flowers broke down and cried. Turning to his manager, Walk Miller, he drawled out: "Walk, don't let my mother hear of this bout. Wire her that I lost, but never let her know what happened.

"You know what happened was merely an accident. The fans do appreciate that I committed no foul."

Flowers always gave action in the ring. He was colorful and always willing to exert himself to give the customers a run for their money

Boxing Game Loses Real Champion Says Tunney

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.)—Gene Tunney today paid tribute to Tiger Flowers, former middleweight champion, who died last night.

"Tiger Flowers was a credit to his calling, his race and his country," declared Tunney. "The Negro race loses a bright and shining standard bearer. The boxing game loses a real champion, one who lived cleanly and reflected nothing but credit on the sport, and we of the boxing fraternity lose a friend."

SHARKEY INJURY ONLY 'SLIGHT SWELLING'

New York, Nov. 17 (I.N.S.)—Following definite announcement by [illegible] Madison Square Garden [illegible] physicians that Jack Sharkey's injured left eye was suffering from a slight swelling," the New York Commission today prepared to "new to the line."

Sharkey's announcement from Boston, that he had fractured his hand while training last pounded in the face of the Sharkey-Heeney bout which had been scheduled for tomorrow night.

After studying the commission's order for Sharkey to appear here for questioning, Johnny Buckley, the fighter's manager, wired last night that he would produce Sharkey before the commission Friday.

He added that Sharkey was "eager to fight Heeney just as soon as his hand permits." The report of Dr. Klein, Boston physician who examined Sharkey said that while there was a "slight swelling, the examination showed no evidence of a recent fracture."

ARGONNE A. A. SHOW OFF

The Argonne A. A. has been forced to postpone its boxing show scheduled for tomorrow night and featuring a bout between Roner Robertson and Leo Lonski.

Robertson notified Matchmaker Eddie Mack today that he was in no condition to box tomorrow night. He said he would not be able to do himself justice, having suffered for the last few days with cramps and stomach trouble.

The Argonne A. A. rather than put on a substitute called the show off.

Bouts Last Night

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Philadelphia—Battling Levinsky, Philadelphia, won from Matt Adgie, Philadelphia, in Kozy Bilmes, Philadelphia, defeated San Saunders, Mexico, 10; Will Matthews, Baltimore, knocked out Sam Boat Williams, Norfolk, Va., 4; Al German, Philadelphia, knocked out Jack Blackburn, Baltimore, 4.

Marsters Is Leading Back in the East

By Bil Grimes

To those who followed his closely this season, Al Marsters is the outstanding back in the East. Although playing his first year of varsity football, Marsters failed to display a weakness. Offensively, Marsters was a star. He was one of the best ground gainers and blockers on the Dartmouth squad. On the defence, he was just as valuable.

One thing that the critics failed to stress is the fact that Marsters was not playing his right position. His natural tendency is to be right on the line, but playing left half caused him to run to end weak side. Regardless of this handicap, Marsters came through as no other Dartmouth back has ever delivered. At left he had the most difficult pass to make, for he was obliged to sight before throwing, which made it necessary for the Arlington boy to take his eye off the receiver.

Jess Hawley, who finished his season last Saturday at Dartmouth, will remain in the East until after the Army-Navy game. Hawley will Harry Heinegg, the graduate manager at Dartmouth, are in town and will be the guests of Arnie Horne at the Yale game on Saturday.

The Colby College team came through in great style this season in the State series. Colby did not look any too promising at the start, but Eddie Roundy whipped the squad into a real outfit, and a touch upset by Bowdoin in the last game, found back and succeeded to tie with the University of Maine for the championship.

The announcement that Eddie Jeremiah won his football letter at Dartmouth was good news to Somerville friends. Jeremiah started his athletic career at Somerville High under "Dutch" Ahearn and he has a splendid opportunity of being a nine-letter man at Dartmouth, for he should make all of the hockey and baseball teams this year.

After watching Cornell in action against Dartmouth, it is difficult to see how the Ithacans expect to ever be a serious contender against Harvard, University of Pennsylvania, Dartmouth or Princeton. Dartmouth has the poorest Cornell team in many years. The line is fair but there is absolutely no class to the backfield.

Jimmie Knox witnessed the Army-Notre Dame game last week. He states that the "Fighting Irish" were outclassed in almost every department. The forward passing of Notre Dame failed to function because of the passer being hurried by the fast charging West Point line. Rockne is supposed to have a sure fire running attack even though it is directed at the ends, but it was a "dud" against the Army.

Coaches Brown, Robinson and Mahoney are putting the finishing touches on Boston University before the annual Holy Cross game. The Terriers won a decision over the Crusaders last season, and if fight and spirit, along with the undivided support of the university, will bring the desired results, B. U. will furnish another upset.

Football critics were skeptical when Tufts signed Arthur Sampson as its football coach. They figured that it would be impossible for a high school coach to make the college grade, especially when forced to work with the talent at the Medford institution. There are few more thorough football men in the game than Sampson, and along with his knowledge of the game he uses common sense in working his players. Tufts is to be congratulated upon its selection and Coach Sampson on his success.

MAY SETTLE KEARNS SUIT OUT OF COURT

Newark, N. J., Nov. 17 (I.N.S.).—The battle of the two Jacks—Dempsey and Kearns—this morning was adjourned until next Monday. The adjournment was granted because of the illness of one of Dempsey's attorneys.

Kearns, Dempsey's former manager, is suing the ex-champion for $313,332.33, which he charges that Dempsey owes him as his percentage on fights from 1923 to 1926.

Immediately after Federal Judge Fake granted the motion for adjournment, he went into conference in his chambers with attorneys for both sides. This led to a report around the courthouse that a settlement of the action was in prospect.

Kearns claims that Dempsey broke his contract, and is suing for one-third of the profits of the most prosperous period of Dempsey's career.

Yale May Play at 'Tournament of Roses'

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.)—In an article, published in the New York American today, Damon Runyon said that authorities at the Tournament of Roses, held annually in Pasadena, Cal., "are making an effort to secure Yale as the opponent for the University of Southern California in the New Year's game at the Rose Bowl."

Although there is an agreement between Princeton, Harvard and Yale that no post-season football games shall be played, the article says there is hope that "Yale will apply for a dispensation from Harvard and Princeton for this one game."

ELI LINEUP PICKED BY COACHES

Regular Varsity Eleven Is to Start Game Against Harvard in Stadium

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 17.—Following a session of the Yale football coaches today, the following lineup of the first and second elevens and the distribution of the reserves for the Harvard game were announced.

First eleven—Ends, Scott and Fishwick; tackles, Quarrier and Eddy; guards, Greene and Captain Webster; centre, Charlesworth; quarterback, Hoben; left halfback, Garvey; right halfback, Cox; fullback, Decker.

Second eleven—Ends, Hyde and O'Hara; tackles, Marting and Horton; guards, Kell and Norman Hall; centre, Barlow; quarterback, Rob Hall; left halfback, Goodbody; right halfback, Cox; fullback, Decker.

The second team backfield may be regarded as the stadium exact as it stands. Lord in this way gives more effective in his attack than when two members are interested in the play as individual substitutes.

The rushing reserves, on the other hand will be drawn upon indirectly. In selecting the rushing staff Coach Jones has chosen one of Norman Hall who has been starting for Greene, two seasoned reserve forwards in Wallace, Hall in Yales best interests, and Captain Webster, who will be expected to outshine in the passing game. Webster has been used to have the best ing reinforcement player to send in his place.

Jack Scott has been made third reserve guard and the coaches have decided to take the veteran Jerry Mohn to Cambridge as substitute for either guard or tackle

Caldwell Case Is Closed, Says Yale

New Haven Ct. Nov. 17. (AP)—Eligibility of Percy Caldwell, Yale football star, for the Harvard game will not be questioned, it was announced today by officials of the Blue following an investigation of charges that he had received money for playing baseball.

Before the Yale-Princeton game Caldwell was declared ineligible by Yale officials because he had played baseball for money. The decision that he could play was reversed after he presented evidence to show that he had received only $100 for playing baseball with a team in Bridgeton, N. J., and that he had given the money to charity. Caldwell's services with the Brown freshmen, before he came to Yale, also have been cleared, and he will be considered under any circumstances, it was said.

MALCEWICZ ON TONIGHT'S CARD

Panther Joe Malcewicz, citizen of Utica, N. Y., is in Boston today and plans to spend the evening in a ringside seat at the Grand Opera House tonight to witness the finish wrestling match between Abe Kaplan and George LaLoo.

Malcewicz is here to see for himself and he picks Kaplan to beat McLeod in two straight falls.

Although Kaplan is the favorite to win, fans who have watched the farmer in action, are of the opinion that the Jewish champ will have a busy evening ahead of him.

Promoter Bowser has shifted his semi-final a little an matched Tom Lyons clever Russian wrestler to meet Jovanni Varenini the Italian star. This match will be one fall to a finish and Lyons is rated a much better wrestler than either Felice or Rocco one of which was to have met Varenini.

Jack O'Dell vs. George Curley, with Leon Burbanks the third man in the ring will be the opening bout.

Urban and Rural Diseases

A STATISTICAL study made recently shows that the most deadly urban diseases are influenza, cancer, measles, diabetes, and the most deadly rural diseases are typhoid, tuberculosis, scarlet fever and nephritis.

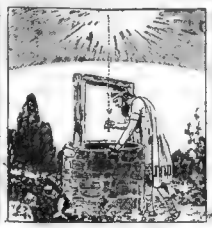
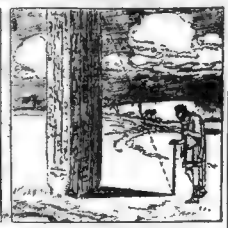
The Story of the Stars (Discovering the Earth's Shape) By Garrett P. Serviss

Even in very ancient times there were philosophers who believed that the earth was round. The Greeks who practiced the deductive method of reasoning were the first to discover the chief proof that the earth is a globe—the fact that the shadow of the moon in an eclipse of the sun is always circular.

It was not until navigation had developed considerably that the gradual disappearance of a receding ship below the horizon was seen to be a proof of the earth's rotundity. But many conservative people would not accept the proof so conclusively set before them.



The size of the earth presented one of the earliest problems to mathematicians. About 240 B. C., Eratosthenes, a Greek, measured the earth. First, at the summer solstice, he observed that the sun at noon cast no shadow in a deep well at Syene on the upper Nile.



Next, at Alexandria, Eratosthenes found by the length of the shadow of an obelisk, on the same date, that the sun there was 7¼ degrees south of the zenith. This showed Syene and Alexandria to be 1-50th of the earth's circumference.

Timely Help in Making of Pies

By MARTHA LEE.

Pie has been chosen as the most popular dessert for November and if we are asked to be more specific, we might say that pumpkin pie reigns supreme.

Delicately flavored creamy, pumpkin custard, firmly set in a crisp flaky, brown crust is a real finish to any meal. Although the pumpkin custard or filling may vary from coarse or pasty if hard or soggy will mean a ruined dessert.

Here is a delectable pastry that makes it on medium sized pumpkin pie foundations:

Pastry—One-half cup shortening, two cups sifted pastry flour, three-quarters teaspoon salt, ice water.

Mix and sift the dry ingredients. Cut in the shortening with a knife. Mix to cold water, using a knife, and when well mixed, toss on a slightly floured board and divide. Roll out lower crust and line pie plates. Fill with the following pumpkin mixture:

Pumpkin Pie Mixture—Three cups strained and strained pumpkin, three cups evaporated milk, two and one-quarter cups sugar, four eggs, one tablespoon salt, one teaspoon each cinnamon, ginger and nutmeg to taste.

Mix sugar, salt and spices; add strained pumpkin, egg beaten slightly and evaporated milk. Pour into lined pie pans. Bake in a 375 degree F. or moderate oven for one hour.

Cranberry pie has been voted second as a dessert often a rather tart dainty. To start flavor of the cranberries seems to offer just the right touch to the meal, leaving the diner with a comfortable satisfied feeling.

Cranberry Pie—Three cups cranberries, one and one-half cups sugar, one cup water, one and one-half tablespoons tapioca, pastry for two crust pie.

Wash and pick over the cranberries, then cook with one cup water and salt until the berries burst. Add the sugar mixed with the tapioca. Stir and set aside to cool. Line a pie plate with pastry. Turn in the filling and put criss-cross pastry strips over the filling. Bake about thirty minutes, having oven temperature at hot or 400 degrees F. for the first ten minutes, then reducing to 350 degrees F. or a moderate oven for the remainder of the baking.

Butterscotch pie is a real treat when prepared after the following recipe:

Butterscotch Pie Filling—One and one-half cups brown sugar, three tablespoons flour, one and one-third cups milk, one-sixteenth teaspoon salt.

Mix sugar, flour and salt. Add milk or slightly beaten egg yolks, then combine with the sugar and flour. Cook over hot water until thick and creamy, then add butter. Cool. Bake a two-crust pastry shell crust (to prevent swell from shrinking, bake over outside of pie plate), pressing with fork to prevent formation of air blisters. Bake for twelve to fifteen minutes in a 400 degree F. oven. Cool before pouring in filling. Cover with a meringue made by beating the egg whites until stiff, adding gradually two and one-half tablespoons of powdered sugar for each white. Bake in a 300 degree F. or slow oven until meringue is well puffed and delicately brown. Increase the temperature to brown top. The meringue should be baked about thirty minutes. This method produces a fluffy, dry meringue that is not stringy nor forms "beads" upon cooling.

Lemon Pie—One-quarter cup flour or cornstarch, one cup sugar, one cup boiling water, two eggs, one tablespoon butter, juice and rind of a lemon.

Mix sugar and flour, add the boiling water slowly and boil until clear, stir constantly. Add butter, the yolks of eggs beaten lightly and lemon and if desired, fold in the stiffly beaten white of one egg. When the mixture is cool, place on a baked crust, with plain pastry.

Yours for better pies,
MARTHA LEE.

This Day in Our History

CONGRESS met for the first time in the newly erected Capitol at Washington, D. C., November 17, 1800. It was the second session of the Seventh Congress, and Nathaniel Macon of South Carolina was Speaker of the House.

The LOVELORN by Beatrice Fairfax

A Love Serial of Boston Girls by an Authority on the Affairs of the Heart

CHAPTER 16.

GEORGIE was alone with Ernest. Mrs. Mountford, in her slinky, black, expensive clothing, her elaborate make-up, her supercilious air of contempt and patronage had vanished.

Now Ernest was back, looking down at her, darkly, terribly, silent, making her breathe harder and faster by the intent criticism of his look.

"Well," he asked at last. "What did you want to see me about?"

Tears sprang into Georgie's eyes. An hour ago even, she could have resented that speech and that tone. But now the confidence had been shaken out of her by seeing him so cool, by watching him with the woman of th world with her air of culture, of smart finishing-schools, and being used to money and all that money could buy.

"I wasn't sure that you got my message," she faltered.

"Oh, I got it all right," he said harshly. "I won't say I wasn't surprised."

"I—I thought I ought to explain," she stammered.

"What is there to say?"

"Lots and lots—if you only listen. You see, I wasn't afraid of going away with you, I really wasn't."

"No?"

"Oh, you don't need to believe me if you don't want to. But I am trying to tell you the truth. I wouldn't dream of going away with you because—because I don't love you."

He laughed shortly. "And you came around to tell me that? Why, if you didn't love me a little, you wouldn't have come around at all."

"But I don't—I really don't love you!"

His eyes were dark and blazing now. He caught her suddenly, in the imperious way he had, and she had no strength to resist him. As he kissed her again and again, it seemed that all the will went out of her.

"Oh, stop, stop!" she whispered. "I don't love you—I really don't! Besides, you love that woman who was here today. It is no use telling me you don't. I could see that from the way you looked at her."

She was confused about his motives—she couldn't understand them, but then there were so many things about Ernest Brooks that she couldn't understand.

After all, he was different, he was an artist, and artists lived differently, thought differently, from most other people

"But you're being unfair to me," she protested now. "You're not being kind or understanding or anything. You try to force me and threaten me right away. How do I know if I love you? You're terribly attractive to me, but that isn't the same as love, is it?"

"It's what I call love," he said at that. "You're terribly attractive to me, Georgie. Why, that very first day when I saw you standing in the crowd waiting for the car—do you remember?"

She nodded. "Of course I remember."

"Well, there was something different about you then, about the way you looked even. If you think I go around picking up girls, you've got another guess coming. I picked up you, because I thought you had real stuff. But the way you're treating me now makes me think you're just like the rest."

"Gold!"

There's the Coin of the Realm and the Gleam of a Baby's Hair

DRAWN BY Dorothy Flack

THE mistress of the world—GOLD! A mistress who expects and demands the most fearful prices for her possession. A mistress who—like the will-o'-the-wisp—beckons men onward to war and strife and even death. Her name is sufficient to lure men to destruction and only the strongest and most persistent ever win her.

Not alone is she the mistress of men, but women, too, adore her and seek her out, but for a different purpose. Some men say that men simply want her to glorify women, and perhaps this may be true. But these women, when they find her, are too often not as happy as they thought they would be.

How many women are there who would trade all the gold in their possession for the gold of a baby's hair? The gold of a baby's smile and the dear feel of a baby's tiny rose-leaf fingers? This is the only good worth having and rich is she who possesses this treasure of the gods.

For it's a gold beyond price, a gold worth all the sacrifice and all the Love that's in the world. And when one seeks this god, happy is her quest, and her reward is far beyond the coid glitter of the "Mistress of Metals."

'Georgie,' He Pleaded, 'Come Away With Me Now'

"Georgie," he pleaded, "don't be a fool, come away with me! I love you and want you. What else can I say? What else matters? You hurt me a lot more than you know by being suspicious of me, not trusting me, you didn't even give me a chance. I tell you're worth a million Mrs. Mountford—Georgie, you've got to come with me. I'll make you happy—you'll have a time you never even dreamed about."

"But why won't you marry me right away?" she asked. "I'll go if you'll do that—I really will."

He released her abruptly, stared at her with moody, almost angry eyes.

"You haven't much of a soul after all, have you?" he demanded. "You're just the average, scheming girl, who's on the make, first and last. Well, one thing is settled. Unless you go with me as freely, you won't go with me at all. I'm going to test you with that, do you understand? I'm going to give you your chance to believe me or not, just as you like. But if you're suspicious of me, I don't even want you!"

He had spoken with heat, and somehow his sincerity seemed unbelievable, impossible. Georgie, humbly, felt she deserved his scorn.

It Was Like Music to Hear Him, Georgie Thought

Then all at once he pushed her down into the deep wing chair, and bent over her, touching her hair with fingers that seemed as sensitive as a woman's. Her head was turned from him. She was staring into a mirror. But she was staring into it also. Their glances met there, while his voice, low, persuasive, and vibrant, wooed her. It seemed to belie his cool eyes, the sneer of his face with his hard mouth and cynical, tired air.

It was like music, listening to that voice, Georgie thought. It was like being carried along drowsily on a sleepy river, without caring where she went or how.

Then she thought of all the boys and men she had known. She thought of Bill Warren with his matter-of-fact ways, his bidding that passed for humor, his insistence on telling her about himself and how rich and successful he was going to be.

She thought of the bewildered look he had when she was angry. Why, he was just a boy, and most men were just boys, compared to this man who was talking to her now!

Did she love Ernest Brooks? She must, or how could she help it? Ann hadn't understood him, few people could understand him. But he had confided in her a hundred times. Perhaps like him she was an artist. She had loved to draw when she was a child, she remembered.

There must be some bond between them to make him talk like this, to make him plead with her as though his very life depended upon it.

It was a subtle flattery at which not reason. He was being cool and clever.

"Georgie, Georgie . . ." She felt his breath on her cheek. It was as if she were drugged with some sweet powerful incense.

She tried to spoke off it but once, she rose to her feet. In vain he ceased speaking, and his whole attitude had changed. The spell was broken. He was watching her like a cat.

He didn't look as if he loved her now. He looked more as if he hated her, was furious at her.

"I can't go away with you," she stammered. "I couldn't ever. That's all there is to it."

He stood without moving. She turned towards the hall, feeling a little miserable. Why wouldn't he say something now?

Then at last he spoke, crisply and grimly. "Listen! Tomorrow night I'll go to the little restaurant on Huntington avenue. I'll be there at —— Come there and dine with me. I'll wait. If you do come there, I'll understand you've thought things over and decided to go away with me, because you trust me, care for me a little. If you don't show up, then I've only one thing to say, don't ever come near me, speak to me, see me again, so long as you live!"

She felt angry now. As if he could force her with that kind of childish threat!

"Then we'd better say good-bye now," she said.

"Whatever you like," he replied in a tone so cutting and self-controlled that she was hurt in spite of herself.

And suddenly she took the only course left to her. Without thinking she fled, but as she did so she told herself that she hated him.

She would never see him again. Let him have his Mrs. Mountfords—a lot she cared.

The little restaurant on Huntington avenue—tomorrow at seven!

By MARCELINE D'ALROY.

It seems some WOMEN can RESIST anything but TEMPTATION and some MEN Can resist ANYTHING but a WOMAN. For after all The GREATEST temptation to MAN is a woman and the Greatest TEMPTATION to a WOMAN is a man She LOVES.

For WHEN one loves, one WANTS To GIVE, anything, everything—Whatever the beloved DESIRES The TEMPTATION comes to FULFILL that want.

But men,

To EXPERIENCED women, Are like CHILDREN. They have To be DISCIPLINED, yet they Must NEVER be aware of it! Who SPOILS her children and Her LOVERS, takes the easy WAY and in the END they Ride OVER her and often LEAVE her—ALONE, hurt, ANGRY—complaining of the INGRATITUDE of those she LOVED.

Women MUST have a Standard of LOVING, as well as a Standard of LIVING.

Then MEN will be Found to MEASURE UP.

'Sally's Shoulders'; Ted Sloan Talks About Marriage

closed, and she told herself that he had gone home—or perhaps the girl in white was a friend of his, and he was going to her house for dinner. Or perhaps he was taking her some place to have dinner

"Oh, well, I can't help it. He's nothing to me, after all," Sally said to herself, sensibly.

And just at that moment his door opened and he came out and closed it behind him. His lean brown face flashed with a friendly grin, and he held up his hand in greeting.

"I was just going to knock on your door," he said, and to Sally the sound of his voice was a thrilling thing. "I had an idea that you might know of a secretary for me. Miss Casne in this afternoon after two weeks' vacation and broke the pleasant news to me that she got married on Saturday."

"Was the girl in white your secretary?" Sally wanted to ask, but instead of that she repeated: "A secretary. No, I don't believe I know a single girl who——" She broke off, and a troubled look came into the dark blue eyes.

She did know a girl who was out of a job . . . Millie! Millie, with her soft little mouse-ways, her lisp and her drawling voice, her green-blue eyes that said so many interesting things to any man who happened to take her fancy; her perfumed clothes and gaudy stockings and high heels.

At the thought of Millie sitting in John Nyce's office, quite on his own, all day long, six days a week, that same old little pain twisted again in Sally's breast.

So I knew now what I had had a feeling was. It was jealousy, pure and simple.

"I know a girl who might do," she said with an effort. It seldom occurred to Sally to tell a lie. Her natural impulse was to tell the truth, no matter what that was. This time it was costing her a great deal.

"She's my sister," she went on, her voice husky and husky, not like the light and sipping voice that was part of her gay charm.

John Nyce's level black brows went up a bit. "Your sister," he said. "I'm sure she'd do—that is, if she's half as nice as you are. To think of your getting old Hank Peevey his lunch every day——"

"I'll ask her to come to see you in the morning if you'd like me to, Sally interrupted him briskly. And when he said that he would, all the light and gaiety faded out of her face.

But the man did not see it. For he and Sally were walking down the hall towards the elevator now, and the big down-turned brim of her hat hid her face from him as she went along noiselessly.

"My cars parked in the next block," he said when they reached the street, "and I'll be glad to take you any place you want to go——"

"No, thanks," Sally cut him short again. "I've some shopping to do." And she went on her way to the delicatessen in Summer street to buy a certain kind of rye-bread that Mrs. Jerome was very fond of.

Millie was not at home when Sally got there at 7 o'clock.

"She went out about 4 o'clock, and said she might be here for supper, but that she probably wouldn't," Beau told Sally as she passed his open bedroom door on her way to her own room. "I've been sick all day. I guess it's the heat. Anyway, I'm ill, she finished pathetically.

He was lying on his bed. His coat and shoes were off, and he was reading the sport section of the Evening American.

The door of Mrs. Jerome's room was closed. Sally softly opened it, and [illegible] was sound asleep.

"I won't wake her up," thought Sally. "Poor thing!—I'll get her something to eat when she wakes up."

Mrs. Jerome's eyes opened and she yawned.

"Ah, it's you, Sally," she murmured. "What's that you have? Rye bread? I'll [illegible] for my supper, I think." She raised her face to be kissed, and closed her eyes again.

"Would you like some supper, or do you feel too burn?" Sally asked Beau, when she had slipped into her thin bungalow apron a few minutes later.

"I've never been too sick to eat yet, and I never expect to be," Beau told her with cheerful bluntness, never a sneeze up from Jack Dempsey's "Own Story," a popular feature of the sporting pags of the American.

Ted Sloan came up the back stairs to the Jerome flat when he heard Sally walking about in the kitchen.

"Hello," he said, and seated himself on a corner of the table. "Gosh, this day sure has been warm, hasn't it?"

"Fiercel awful!" answered Sally, emptying the refrigerator drip pan down the sink.

"I could have done that for you, Ted went on, "but you move around so fast that I never know what you're going to do until you're done it." He began to scrape out the bowl of his pipe with his pocket knife. His gray eyes were on Sally's white face.

It was damp with perspiration, and around the forehead her hair clung in little rings. The cheap pink bungalow apron was turned back at the neck, leaving her throat bare.

She sat down on her knees to put the pan in place under the icebox, and when she arose Ted was standing close beside her. She glanced up at him in surprise, and [illegible] something that she saw in his eyes—in the sudden masterful glint in his gray eyes—made her turn sharply away from him and walk over to the other side of the kitchen.

"I—I'm sorry to [illegible] I'll [illegible] for my supper, I think," she raised her face to be kissed, and closed her eyes again.

"Would you like some supper, or thin, dainty slices from the loaf of Bohemian rye bread.

He stayed his throat. "Say, Sally," he began suddenly, "ever think about doing that for me?"

She looked up, wide-eyed. "Doing what?"

"Get a supper for me—the rest of my life?"

"Supper for you?" Sally echoed. "Why, what do you mean?"

As they stood there, facing each other across the neat, comfortable kitchen, Mrs. Jerome's voice called shrilly from her bedroom.

"Sally! Sally! Have you forgotten me?"

"What's that boy talking to you about?" she asked [illegible] when her daughter came [illegible] side with a trayful of food.

The greatest fear in Mrs. Jerome's life was that someone would marry Sally and take her away. For besides being a daughter, Sally was so many other things—nurse, and cook and bread-winner. She was the most necessary item in Mrs. Jerome's life.

"Oh, you mean Ted?" asked Sally innocently frank. "Why, he wants me to get married to him. At least, I think that's what he's been trying to say to me out there in the kitchen."

Mrs. Jerome gazed at her for a long minute with wet stricken eyes.

"Sally! You'd never do it, would you?" she asked in a shaky voice, and Sally promised her solemnly that never, as long as she lived, would she marry Theodore Sloan!

Tomorrow—Sally makes a heart sacrifice and tells Millie of the job with John Nyce.

FABLES IN SLANG

A Man and His Money

By George Ade

THE FABLE OF BATTING 1000 AT GETTING IT WRONG
ONCE AN HUMBLE GINK WOKE UP TO FIND HIMSELF A CELEBRITY—
AFTER THAT HE ACCEPTED ALL INVITATIONS TO PROVE HE WAS NOT CHESTY, AND THE KNOCKERS SAID HE WAS GRAND-STANDING—
HE SPENT HIS COIN FREELY TO LET THEM KNOW HE WAS NOT A GASPARD, AND WORD WENT AROUND HE WAS SHOWING OFF—
LEARNING THAT CIRCUS METHODS WERE UNPOPULAR HE STAYED AT HOME AND PLAYED ON THE RADIO—
HE ATE BY HIMSELF IN BEANERIES RATHER THAN BE A CHEAP SPLASH— FORMER GUESTS REFUSED TO SPEAK TO HIM!
MORAL
SPEND IT OR KEEP IT AND OUT COMES THE HAMMER!

Salient Points of the Bidding

South, holding eight Diamonds headed by four honors, bids five Diamonds to shut-out, if possible, adverse bidding. A BOUND pre-emptive bid is one that should GO GAME with but the average expectancy of support, three tricks, or falling such support, SAVE GAME at small loss compared to the game so saved. West, holding a powerful Major two-suiter, and refusing to be shut out, bids the longer and stronger of the two.

Salient Points of the Play

Trick 5. At Trick 4 West could mark South as having held originally eight or nine Diamonds and two Hearts. If eight Diamonds and two Hearts, South's remaining three cards must be three Spades, three Clubs, two Spades and a Club, or two Clubs and a Spade. West can not possibly avoid losing at least one Club trick. To attempt either dropping the Queen of Spades, or finessing against it, risks the loss, also, of a Spade trick. If South holds two or more Clubs, he can hold but one or no Spades. Therefore West's best play at this point is to lead a small Club toward the king in Dummy, to clear up the Club situation before deciding upon how to play his Spades.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Annie Kwinski of 526 1st Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes that she became so weak and run-down that she was not able to do her housework. She saw the name Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the paper and said to her husband, "I will try that medicine and see if it will help me." She says she took six bottles and is feeling much better.

Mrs. Mattie Adams, who lives in Downing Street, Brewton, Ala., writes as follows: "A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and since taking it I feel like a different woman."

When her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grandchildren, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Thousands of women past fifty, say they owe their health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In a polite age almost every person becomes a reader, and receives more instruction from the press than the pulpit.—Goldsmith.

THE WITTY SAYINGS OF MEDBURY---BY JOHN P. MEDBURY

IN spite of all the propaganda lately, gold digging is still one of our largest industries.

THERE are hundreds of dames in New York city who could make the Three Wise Men look like a bunch of yokels.

ONE girl takes great pride in her speed. She gets over sixty suckers to the hour.

THERE'S one born every minute and she grabs them quicker than the stork can bring them.

WHEN she gets through with a man he has nothing left but his vaccination mark.

SHE leaves him so flat he could put stilts on and walk under a dachshund.

HIS pockets are emptier than a baby buggy in the Old People's Home.

HER motto is "Give and Take." You give and she takes.

HER specialty is tight-wads. She loves to make them loose.

HER genius is amazing. She was over in Glocester this Summer and taught a couple of Scotchmen to smoke their own cigarettes.

ONE of them was so crazy about her he wanted her to have a nice present. She finally agreed, and he wrote to Santa Claus.

IT'S a shame that Uncle Sam doesn't send a few of these gold-diggers to Europe to bring some of our money back.

IT wouldn't take them long to help the Frenchmen cancel their debt.

GIVE these dames three weeks in Paris and we'd owe France money.

A LOT of these girls have given up gold-digging and are now living respectably on alimony.

A CLEVER woman never has to worry about starving. She can always find a breach of promise suit to fall back on.

PIMPLES BURNED DREADFULLY

Over Face, Hands and Body. Cuticura Heals.

"Pimples broke out all over my face, hands and body. They were hard, large and red and later scaled over. The pimples burned and itched dreadfully and all I did was scratch them. Scratching later caused eruptions, and I was badly disfigured. I could not sleep very well on account of the irritation.

"Other remedies were used without success. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in two weeks I felt a little better. I continued using them, and in two months I was healed." (Signed) Miss Adrienne Ferrin, 23 Market St., Chicopee Falls, Mass., Feb. 28, '27.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

IT is sad to die for love—but much sadder to die without it.

In these days, a "gentleman" is one who disguises that "Let-me-love-you-for-a-little-while" attitude with a beautiful sugar-coating of devotion.

Man in inanivel life invented the trolley car, the automobile and the airplane for saving time and annihilating space; but he is still inventing alibis for always being late.

No man ever had such an inferiority complex that a bald spot, a flat purse or a sixty-two inch belt deterred him from seeking a perfect woman for his "mate."

The most satisfying husband, like the most satisfactory hat, is one that flatters you, brings out all your best points and makes you feel pleased with yourself.

There are moments when the wife of a woman-chaser feels almost like apologizing to all the rest of women for taking up so much of his time.

A confirmed bachelor is a man who is too proud to be a rich woman's darling and too selfish to be a poor woman's comfy register.

To a woman, jealousy is merely a pain in her vanity; to a man it is a sword-thrust through his amour propre and his belief in his divine right to the exclusive devotion of any woman on whom he chances to set his fancy.

An egotist is never bored unless there is something around to take his mind off himself.

Puts An End To Bunion Pains

No Need to Suffer Another Day

There is one simple yet inexpensive way to reduce inflammation of swollen toe joints and help get them down to normal and that is to apply Moone's Emerald Oil night and morning.

Ask any first-class druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and refuse to accept anything in its place. It is such a highly concentrated preparation that two ounces lasts a long time and furthermore if one bottle Emerald Oil does not give you complete satisfaction you can have your money refunded.

Special note: People who want to reduce swollen or varicose veins should get a bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil at once. Applied night and morning as directed they will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S PLATFORM FOR BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

For BOSTON: 1—Clean streets.
2—Solution of traffic and parking problems.
3—Better pay for honest public service.
4—An airport SECOND TO NONE.
5—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land; in order that Boston, properly supplied with first-class hotels, may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

For NEW ENGLAND: 1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness.

Shirts

Maine PRISON Labor Will Make Them for 6 Cents Apiece

A lively controversy is in progress in Maine over the contract by which the Prison Commission has sold the labor of the men at Thomaston to certain manufacturers of Chicago.

Under this contract the inmates of the penitentiary are to be employed at shirt making.

The work will be paid for at from 62 to 85 cents per dozen, the average price being 70 cents.

There are well-known shirt manufacturers in and near Lewiston whose goods are preferred in parts of New England and popular elsewhere. It appears that these manufacturers knew little about the Prison contract until it was signed, sealed and in the way of being delivered.

Maine's "free" labor costs these Maine manufacturers $1.50 per dozen shirts, against the 70-cent average of the contractors. The Maine men, further, have considerable sums invested in buildings. They pay taxes and insurance premiums, from which the Chicagoans are free.

It is "manifestly unfair," in the opinion of Judge Benjamin F. Cleaves of the Associated Industries, for the State of Maine thus to enter into competition with the shirt manufacturers of Maine.

Austin H. MacCormick, alumni secretary of Bowdoin College and member of the National Society of Penal Information, calls the establishment of a shirt factory at Thomaston a "grievous error."

The contract system, Mr. MacCormick says, is the "worst form of prison industry, the garment industry the one MOST unsuited to prisons and MOST injurious to free labor and private manufacturer."

Governor Brewster, when the complaint of the Maine men was brought to his attention, asked the Commission to defer action until it could be determined just what can be done under the law.

The Governor was of the opinion that no more than 20 per cent. of Maine's prison labor could be employed in any ONE industry. The law, however, was found upon close examination to contain a clause which looks very much like a "joker." According to the statute, the 20 per cent. limit does NOT apply to classes of goods "not made prior to 1888." The shirt business was to be a new venture.

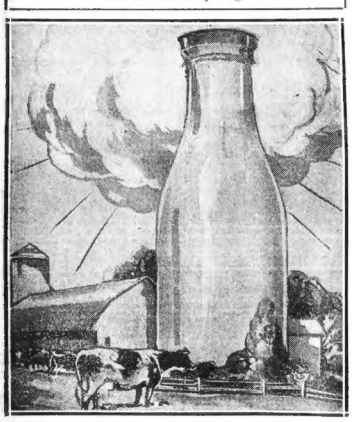
The Prison Commissioners find themselves in a most uncomfortable position, Maine manufacturers and Maine free labor hammering away at them at once.

The discussion was waxing warm when 25 inmates of the prison returned to Thomaston after a Summer and an Autumn spent out of doors, building a dirt highway from Union to West Rockport.

Some of the prisoners said they would have been glad to remain on the highway job throughout the Winter. There, at least, their labor would not have riled any State of Maine manufacturer. They arrive "home" in time to be put to work at making shirts, for 70 cents the dozen.

Chemistry Can Beat Nature

But Not in Everything



THIS COW GIVES SIXTY TIMES HER WEIGHT IN MILK

Dr. Edwin E. Slosson tells Collier's Weekly that chemistry beats Nature at her own game. He says: "Your life is being changed more rapidly and fundamentally than ever before in the history of time. The chemist is doing it. Already he has made artificially some two hundred thousand more substances than Nature has made — brighter hues, stronger drugs, colder 'ice,' more penetrating perfumes. The future is in his test tubes; no man's imagination is vivid enough to tell how great it may be." Dr. E. E. Slosson, author of Creative Chemistry, tells the story of what science has given you in a most inspiring way.

Henry Ford has expressed his belief that men will make better milk than the cow produces. The chemist can pack into a small pill enough "nourishment" to take a flier to the North Pole and back.

There is no knowing what we shall be, what we shall eat, wear or think in the millions of years that are ahead of us.

SOME OF THE JOYS OF OLD AGE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

FANNY WARD, sixty-one years of age, has been appearing in vaudeville, looking like a flapper of sixteen.

All over the country there are beauty parlors which claim to make old people young.

Perhaps in no respect does our day differ from former times so much as in the joys of old age. Time was when a woman was old and laid on the shelf at fifty. Now at fifty she is just beginning to step out. The grandmothers are about as insistent as the flappers.

Women are realizing that after their child-bearing period has passed and their household duties have disappeared there is still much left in life for them to enjoy. The mind in many cases refuses to acknowledge the limitations of age. Queen Victoria at an advanced age took up a foreign language, and an English poet undertook the study of Dutch when he was about seventy years old.

Women, especially, nowadays recognize that they can retain their attractiveness and vivacity in spite of time.

"These three things," says an old proverb, "are short-lived: A rainbow in the sky, an echo in the woods and woman's beauty."

The echo and the rainbow are still as short-lived as ever. Not so feminine attractiveness.

In the past, Sweet Sixteen marked the high tide of feminine pulchritude. Now the tide is setting toward "Sweet Sixty."

The improvement in the general health, the lengthening of the average life, the greater thought devoted to personal appearance account for the change.

To that list must be added that the ideas concerning what a woman can wear as she grows older has altered.

In the days of our playful grandmother the playfulness was supposed to end early and her clothes were a reflection of the idea. As she grew older she had all the choice of a street sparrow of the colors it was proper to wear.

Now she is turned loose in the pastures of the chromatic uplands.

She can flash silken, flesh-colored hose under a short dress and wear a red hat if she wants to, and no delegation from the Suppression of Bumptious Females Society visits her the next day.

We haven't the word of Mr. Babson or any of the other men who have pigeon-holed the information of the world into statistics, but it is our undying conviction that there are more middle-aged pretty women now than there ever were in the world before.

And this is all to the good.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

WATCH me bust into flames!

I've been trying to get West 6666 for the last hour 'n' a half and the lady's still talking. I'm chock full of homicide, manslaughter, carnage and plain murder. Wherefore, I'm going to ease my feelings all over this column. And, I'll bet that a million fellow sufferers will break right out into big, wet tears of gratitude.

Every morning, about nine o'clock, I, and those other millions crash into action. Waiting us, on our desks are scads of business. Important, urgent, let's go business. Much of that business must be transacted over the telephone!

WELL, JUST TRY AND TRANSACT IT!

Draw yourself up to the phone, dear, give your number and see what happens!

Do you see that bond, get that important address, make that date, rush those directions? You do not.

Line's busy.

Edith is telling Anne about her new hat—

Rose is pulling off a fight with her mother-in-law—

Alice is phoning Hazel about her marvelous new sheik—

Mrs. Junes is going into the details of her latest operation and making Mrs. Owens gangrenous with envy—

Line's busy! The minute they get the kids off to school they begin. Calling up their friends—listening to the latest gossip — spilling the dirt about their husbands — wondering whether they'd better let their hair grow, after all.

And it isn't only the Home Mamas: Cutie down at the office has her morning gab orgy, as soon as the boss is out of the room. How often have you bitten the blotter pad in impotent rage, waiting to give Sam Jones that urgent tip on Mountain Copper, while Sam's Tilly chewed the long distance fat for an hour with her Girl Friend? And what did you say while you waited? No, don't tell me. This is a nice paper and the boss thinks my stuff is too rough as it is.

But, oh, boy, won't you welcome that day with yelps of joy, when they invent a telephone that'll jump up and bite a lady hard, right in the tonsil, when she's talked more'n forty-five minutes at a stretch.

FIGHT BETWEEN MAN AND INSECTS

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Subjects of Popular Interest

THERE is a profound struggle, an irrepressible conflict, between two great orders of living creatures on this globe, represented by man on one side and insect on the other. The vast importance of the struggle between them has only within a few years past begun to be properly recognized. Says Austin H. Clark, of the Smithsonian Institution, in a paper on the "Biological Relationships of the Land, the Sea and Man":

"We are beginning to feel keenly the competition of the insects. Our further increase in the not distant future will be measured by the success we may attain in the displacement of the insects from their normal food which we shall ourselves consume. The ability of our grandchildren to live will be measured by their ability to suppress their equivalent in insects."

That means that the insect world is our bitter economic rival. Thus considered, a gay-colored beetle, no bigger than the tip of a good pencil, glittering in the sunshine as he flits across a footpath, may be more a subject for anxious thought from the viewpoint of human interests than an object of desire to fill out an entomologist's pinned collection.

Of the three great essentials to life on a planet—air, water and food—nature furnishes two all ready for man's use. The third he must seek and work for and obtain through an intermediary, viz., the plant world. A second intermediary, the race of milk-giving and flesh-giving animals, comes between him and the plants to supply a large portion of man's food.

But while certain animals that we have domesticated for our uses are preserved and cultivated by us, yet Mr. Clark points out that "we never bring an area under extensive cultivation until the large plant-eating animals have mostly been killed off."

In that way we rid ourselves of our larger rivals. Animals that cannot serve us as food sources we eliminate. "Each one of us represents the forcible displacement and suppression of our equivalent in life of other types, the normal, primitive predators upon the plants by which we live."

Chemistry Can Beat Nature

But just at present we must give Nature credit for doing many things that science cannot do.

For instance, Nature makes the cow that you see in this picture able to manufacture sixty times her weight in milk. The chemist, as yet, hasn't been able to make milk artificially.

By artificial means German scientists will produce this year 600,000 tons of nitrogen. By the use of nitrogen and other fertilizers Germany feeds three times as many cows on a given acreage as done under the old system.

Science helps, improves, utilizes, but does not create.

All the science in the world cannot produce one ounce of nitrogen or oxygen, iron, gold, silver, hydrogen or the other "elements," fewer than one hundred in number, of which the universe is made.

Science cannot create sunshine, it cannot create LIFE, and it cannot tell you what it is that does the THINKING that produces chemistry and other sciences.

Nature produced this cow, able to produce sixty times her own weight in milk, and she is a humble creature compared with a great chemist. But she can do what all the science in the world cannot do, SHE CAN PRODUCE LIFE.
